100 FACE FRAUD ARREST

Today

Plain Murder a Bore
Give Success a Chance
Danger in Everything
A Hint to Stalin

By Arthur Brisbane

BIG CITIES are becoming very blase concerning murder.

New York's police discover parts of a dismembered body in places miles apart, the torso floating in the river, legs lying in the street. The only clue is a laundry mark.

Once this would have been a "great murder mystery" rivalling the famous Guldensuppe case, or the "Lamp Black swamp mystery," which kept reporters searching and imagining for weeks.

But mere individual murders cease to interest.

Accidentally they turn out all the lights, then fire at random. Three female "entertainers" of the cabaret are killed, half a dozen others wounded. The police find corpses, and hysterical women and men. The railroad watchman followed the bandits' automobile in his own and thinks he shot one or two.

One little chopped up torso is very mild compared with that.

A decision, important to the moving picture industry, is announced by the Supreme Court. Ten of the biggest companies are said to be breaking the anti-trust law.

The Supreme Court knows. But let us hope that nothing will be done to destroy prosperity in this great industry, that now leads the world. Even if moving picture men are breaking the anti-trust law, which is more or less of a fossil, it is a comfort to remember that they are also breaking the hearts of competitors in France, Germany, England, and all over the world.

If we have something successful, like automobiles or movies, let us give it a chance.

Massigli, French delegate at Geneva, complains to the League of Nations that the huge airplane, DO-X, could suddenly be transformed into a formidable war engine.

He thinks Germany should not have such dangerous weapons.

The Cyrus H. K. Curtis delegate in Russia discovers that the great Soviet tractor factory, located far out of reach, could be transformed, almost over night, to a factory for tanks, guns, war gas and explosives, to be used in war, and supply "millions of fighting men."

The French and the Curtis delegates are right.

Any big factory can make killing machines. Any big airplane, or small one, can drop poison gas or high explosives.

Napoleon waited in vain for a wind that would take him a few miles across the channel, to invade England.

Now Switzerland, without a foot of waterfront, could secretly build and manufacture enough airplanes, poison gas and TNT to destroy every big city in Britain.

It is a problem for every nation, just as the sawed off shot gun and small machine gun are a problem for every citizen.

The thing to do is to be prepared for any attack, and, above all, in a position to make the attacking individual or nation regret it.

This nation may realize, too late, that sentimental peace talk isn't a sufficient protection.

The tariff law permits Secretary Mellon to forbid importation of goods made by convict labor. Yesterday he issued an order expected to prevent importations from Russia.

If anybody says goods shipped from Russia are made by convict labor, or labor working against its will, goods cannot come in unless the Russian producer and the American importer can prove that no convict labor has been employed.

This looks like a hint for Stalin, the Russian boss, that we do not want to do business with him.

If our so-called "depression" is largely "mental," those with important incomes may prepare for a mental shock.

Congressman Snell, chairman of the House rules committee, says there will be no cut in income taxes, and, in fact, that there will probably be an increase.

Warden Lawes, the head of New York's Sing Sing prison, says the difficulty about gangsters, racketeers, and bootleggers is the fact that they are on friendly or at least non-hostile terms with the police.

According to Mr. Lawes, 10,000 New York racketeers are known to the police, who do nothing about it, and this complicates the situation.

HOOVER PASSES 'RACKET' WAR TO STATES

Demands "Not More Laws," but the Enforcement of Those Now in Effect

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Enforcement of state and federal laws and a "widespread awakening" were put forward today by President Hoover as a solution to the problem presented by gangster activities.

He disavowed any intention of proposing "extension of the federal criminal laws to cover racketeering."

"What is needed is the enforcement of laws, and not more laws," he said.

EACH STATE HAS PLENTY

The text of the President's remarks follows:

"The report that I am proposing to Congress any extension of the federal criminal laws to cover racketeering is untrue.

"Every single state has ample laws that cover such criminality.

"What is needed is the enforcement of these laws, and not more laws.

"Any suggestion of increasing the federal criminal laws in general is a reflection on the sovereignty and the stamina of state government.

TAX DRIVE INEFFECTIVE

"The federal government is assisting local authorities to overcome a hideous gangster and corrupt control of some local governments. But I get no satisfaction from the reflection that the only way this can be done is for the federal government to convict men for failing to pay income taxes on the financial product of crime against state laws.

"What we need is a more widespread public awakening to the failure of some local governments to protect their citizens from murder, racketeering, corruption and other crimes, and their rallying of support to the men of these localities that are today making a courageous battle to clean up these places."

$3,000,000 IN HAND FOR ELY JOBS PLAN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

Important plans for the immediate spending of more than $3,000,000 on highway construction to stimulate employment and business were under discussion today by Governor-elect Joseph B. Ely and state finance officials.

Mr. Ely was informed that the State Department of Public Works can begin to spend one-fourth of its anticipated revenue on December 4. As the anticipated amount for this purpose is between $12,000,000 and $15,000,000 funds in excess of $3,000,000 will be ready for use right away.

After his conference today with state officials, among whom was Charles P. Howard, chairman of the commission on administration and finance, the governor-elect planned to go to his home in Westfield for the Thanksgiving holiday. He expects to return to Boston early next week and commence to get his inaugural recommendations into shape.

Ely also conferred for nearly two

13 Injured as Ferry Crashes Into Slip

Thirteen East Boston residents passengers on the South ferry Daniel A. McCormick, were slightly injured today when the boat crashed into her Atlantic ave. slip.

A mix-up or misunderstanding of signals transmitted from the pilot house to the engine room caused the accident.

There were about 100 passengers on the ferry, which had just crossed the harbor from East Boston, and many of them were thrown to the deck by the impact. The crash tossed the ferry drop several feet from its concrete base but the boat was not damaged. Nor was any of 30 vehicles it was transporting.

ONE TO HOSPITAL

Only one of the injured, in which two women were included, was to a hospital. John A. Gardiner, of 334 Meridian st., went to Haymarket Relief Station for treatment of an injured hand.

The others, all of whom returned to their homes on the next sailing, were:

Capt. Edward R. Grey, for 30 years a master, was in charge of the McCormack. George F. Keating was her engineer. Reports of the accident will be made to the local steamboat inspectors and the municipal bridge and ferry department.

The slip was closed for repairs but the boat resumed her sailings.

Delgass said after the motors had been repaired they were crated and shipped to Russia as "other machinery," despite prohibitive regulations. He did not give the date further than that they had been shipped since 1927.

EMPLOYES OF CITY AMONG 1500 VET CASES

More Than a Dozen Offer to Make Restitution to Avoid Prosecution

Nearly 100 city employes including several policemen and firemen, may be arrested in the law department's drive to recover more than $75,000 paid in fraudulent claims to veterans by the Soldiers' Relief Department.

The scope of the investigation of fake claims was broadened today by Soldiers' Relief Commr. John J. Lydon, who admitted that the claims of several veterans now policemen and firemen were under suspicion and inquiry.

With the investigation still in progress it is expected that the total of the frauds will go considerably beyond the more than $75,000 already revealed.

MANY OFFER TO PAY

The first arrest yesterday, resulting from the nearly 1500 fraudulent cases already brought to light by a corps of investigators working under the direction of Commr. Lydon and Assistant Corporation Counsel Hale Power, precipitated a near-panic among veterans with guilty consciences.

An even dozen, who had received relief aid on fake claims, called on Commr. Lydon to confess their guilt and ask a chance to repay the money and avoid prosecution. Three such called upon Power.

Among them was an employe of city water department who agreed to return $55 obtained by fraudulent claim before he entered the city employ.

Seven agreed to make payments totalling $342 and three others made small payments at once.

There will be no favoritism displayed in prosecution of those guilty, Power said.

CONDITION INHERITED

"We inherited this condition from the Nichols administration. We have discovered a lot of records which reveal that some men should make refunds and that other men entered into agreements to make refunds. Apparently nothing was ever done about it except reaching agreement, Mr. Power declared.

"Policemen, firemen and any other city employes found to have collected aid when they had substantial bank accounts will be arrested."

In all cases where the offending individual has no bank account but is in a position to make regular payments to the relief department and eventually refund the sum gained by fraudulent representation, the chance for restitution without prosecution will be given.

MAY LOSE CITY JOBS

Where such offenders are found to be city employes, however, their dismissal from city service is a possibility and firemen and policemen, if any, found guilty or admitting fraud will face trial boards.

ELY REVEALS PLANS FOR GETTING THINGS STARTED FOR JOBLESS

hours today with members of the special commission appointed by the last Legislature to draw up plans for a State House extension to accommodate the Supreme Court.

Tentative plans were shown him by Sen. T. Bradford Davis of Haverhill, committee chairman. It is understood these call for a wing extension at Bowdoin and Derne sts. The Governor-elect would not express any opinion on them publicly and committee members also declined to comment on the conference.

Chairman Davis said, however, that the committee was going to month for presentation to the incoming Legislature.

The State budget also was discussed, it is understood, at the conference with Chairman Howard. When he departed Ely carried a printed copy of this year's budget.

"I'm just getting acquainted with the State House," was all the Governor-elect would say.

LEADERS APPROVE PLAN.

The proposal of Mr. Ely at the Jefferson Society dinner last night at the Statler Hotel to temporarily set aside the pay-as-you-go policy for an emergency bond issue to finance extraordinary public undertakings for the further relief of employment and to help business today met with the approval of business men and party leaders.

Rep. Leo M. Birmingham of Brighton, minority leader in the House of Representatives, said that the temporary change in the financial policy of the state would immediately put to work thousands of able-bodied unemployed.

"The sound financial condition of the state warrants such action," Birmingham said.

"RIGHT," SAYS FITZGERALD

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, in commenting on the bond issue idea, said that Mr. Ely was "absolutely right" in his premises. Now is the time, Fitzgerald said, to put a public improvement program into effect to relieve unemployment and help business depression.

The former mayor said that in Boston alone it is costing an additional $2,000,000 to help needy families.

"We've got the dole right here now," he said.

He pointed out that many able-bodied jobless men, willing to work, are at the head of these families. The state he said, should take advantage of the lower construction costs, which authorities place at 40 per cent beneath those of 1928. The skilled workmen as well as the laborers must have work provided for them he pointed out.

ELY'S SPEECH

In his Statler speech, the Governor-elect declared that the finances of the state are in sound condition, that the direct net debt is not more than $10,000,000 the state tax $7,000,000 and the resources of the state great.

"I don't think I would hesitate for one minute," he asserted, "in raising funds to continue the state highway from Framingham to Boston.

"I believe that while the New England Council is talking about recreation facilities in Massachusetts and its wonderful scenery, it will be well for the state to spend money for the improvement of highways for tourists."

HIGHWAYS CRITICISED

The speaker criticised the crookedness and narrowness of many of the through highways.

Another big easement of the unemployment situation, he pointed out, would be for the Congress to take advantage of supreme court decisions and raise the legal alcoholic contents of beer to where "men of experience would say it was not intoxicating."

He added:

"Not for the purpose of furnishing beer but solely for the purpose of reviving industry.

In taking up the reins of government, he made it plain, the Democratic party realizes its responsibility, and he called upon those who loyally supported the candidate in the election to co-operate with his administration.

DEMANDS FAIR DEAL.

Touching upon the work that lay ahead of the legislature in redistricting the congressional districts into 15 instead of the present 16, made necessary by the new census, he made it plain that any gerrymandering attempts by the Republican majority would be squelched. With enough votes in the House to sustain his veto, he said, he would sign only a bill that dealt justly with the Democratic party.

The alternative, he said, will be the election of 15 congressmen-at-large.

"I am not sure what result would transpire if we had to elect them at large," he continued. "One thing I am absolutely sure of, in view of the vote for repeal of the Volstead act, is that 15 wet congressmen would be elected."

Senator-elect Coolidge declared that the Democratic victory is without political significance except insofar [illegible] a message to the party lea[illegible] must respect the wishes of the people if these same leaders expect to retain the faith and support of the electorate.

The solution of the economic condition and prohibition, he said, will require the co-operation of best minds of the country. He heartily subscribed to the tenders of support given President Hoover by John J. Raskob and other Democratic leaders in any constructive legislation that may be put forward by the administration.

QUOTES PRESIDENT

State Chairman Frank J. Donahue pleaded for a pre-primary convention system in both parties and also advocated the short ballot under which the governor would name the attorney general, secretary of state, auditor and state treasurer.

John H. Fahey, in a lengthy address, scored the Republican administration for its failure to enact legislation which would bring the great power combines under state control.

The American amendment provides that "if during the validity of the accord a signatory feels its security menaced it may modify its observance of all clauses except those applied to war."

The amendment pointed out that the United States is willing to accept the proposed commission only as an agency for centralizing functions to disseminate information regarding armaments, but refuses to recognize its proposed judicial powers.

The conference today adopted a method of global limitation for naval effectives, the vote being 12 against 1. Russia opposed it and there were a number of abstentions.

according to the present plan.

Investigation of the wholesale frauds in the department has been under way for months, Lydon revealed, and some time ago a form letter demanding reimbursement was sent to those found to have benefited illegally.

This resulted in many veterans appearing for consultation and agreeing to repay sums fraudulently obtained at rates of from $1 to $5 weekly. To date $323.50 has been paid back since the letters were sent out and 41 men, who illegally collected $4179 have agreed to make refunds.

31 UNABLE TO PAY

Thirty-one others who have received a total of $2352 illegally have appeared before the commissioner and declared they were without funds with which to make reimbursement. They will probably not be prosecuted.

Many ignored the warning letters and it is against these that the law department is taking court action. The arrest yesterday of William J. Bartholomew, of West 8th st., South Boston, on a charge of larceny of $210, was the first of many that will follow unless accused veterans make a settlement or attempt to make a settlement with the relief department.

When arraigned, Bartholomew pleaded not guilty and was held in $5000 for hearing next Tuesday.

HAD BIG BANK ACCOUNT.

The reason Bartholomew was not accorded the privilege of making restitution was because he had a large bank account at a time when he was collecting aid, Power said. All others found to have substantial bank accounts while receiving aid from the department will be arrested, he promised.

Investigation of the resources of those who claimed aid at the time they received it was undertaken this morning on order of Commr. Lydon by 12 investigators of his department. These men are known as "visitors." Lydon commanded that a record be made of all persons known to have been working or suspected of being employed at a time when they were receiving help.

1500 FAKE CLAIMS

The 1500 accused are alleged to have practised various forms of deceit in filing their claims for soldiers' aid. Many were regularly employed when they filed claims and received money and others, while not employed at the time they made claims, continued to collect aid after they went to work and had regular incomes.

A year ago last August the Finance Commission charged that since the war acting in good faith, the city's soldiers' relief commissioners had paid out thousands of dollars to veterans on the basis of hard luck stories. The present drive resulted from an investigation caused by those charges.

Both Commr. Lydon and Asst. Corp. Counsel Power are overseas veterans, having served with Headquarters Co., 101st Infantry, during the World War. Both also served at the Mexican border in 1916.

The campaign to end fraudulent claims by veterans has the full moral support of the American Legion, Richard Paul, State commander, declared. He referred to Commissioner Lydon's work as wholly commendable.

"No person receiving money from any relief agency undeservedly, merits the sympathy of anybody, ex-service men or not. By taking such money when he is not entitled to it he deprives worthy ex-service men of aid and should be dealt with summarily."

Lydon said he received many telephone calls commending him upon his action, one from a prominent attorney who declared he was glad to see the office being conducted "on the level."

"No veterans' organization will support swindling of the city," was his reply to a report that veterans were rankled by the drive. "The only ones who will feel resentment are those who have a guilty feeling."

"We want to be fair," said Shreve, "but unless the prohibition bureau makes a good case of its needs, it will not get the additional $2,000,000 requested."

THAYER TELLS OF ARMED PEACE PARTY LED BY PLEADING WIFE

GOT GUN TO PROTECT HIMSELF

Double Divorce Trial Develops Thrills in Two Lines of Testimony

Worcester, Nov. 25—Fearful of attempts on his life following his wife's "peace visit," Fred B. Thayer, wealthy Grafton sportsman, armed himself, he testified today in his cross suit divorce hearing in probate court.

The visit was to Thayer's camp at Flint's Pond, when his wife was accompanied by another woman and several men one of whom carried a gun, Thayer said he was informed.

The retired millman testified he wanted to protect himself, and carried a revolver for some time, having obtained permission.

TELLS OF "BOMBARDMENT"

He said his wife was almost constantly intoxicated, had drinks served in her bedroom each morning by Albert Desjardin, chauffeur, and was in a hospital twice as a result of over-indulgence in liquor.

One of the highlights of Thayer's testimony was the description of an incident when Mrs. Thayer kicked a hole in the windshield of her automobile, severing a tendon in her leg, because she was refused a drink.

The witness said he accompanied her to Worcester City Hospital where the injury was cared for, but it was Desjardin who remained in the operating room, at her request.

Specifying acts of cruelty, Thayer related numerous instances when his wife bombarded him with table ware and toilet articles, scratched his face and hands, and once bit his arm until she drew blood.

LAWYERS AT ODDS.

The morning session was marked by bickering between Atty. Frank B. Hall for Thayer and Atty. Clarence E. Tupper, chief of Mrs. Thayer's legal staff.

On one occasion Atty. Hall created a sensation by asking Thayer why he did not throw Desjardin out, "like any red-blooded American would do," when he found the chaffeur in his wife's bedroom.

Atty. Tupper sprang to his feet with an objection, and Judge Harry T. Atwood informed Atty. Hall such a line of questioning was restricted to cross-examination instead of direct.

Referring to the alleged drinking habits of Mrs Thayer, the witness was asked if he had ever seen her under the influence of liquor.

EXPLAINS DRUNKENNESS

"Yes, a great many times," replied Thayer. "Four or five days a week."

Asked to explain how he determined that she was intoxicated, he said:

"When one can't walk, one is drunk. Also when one screams and cries and has spells.

The attempted reconciliation, Thayer said, was on Aug. 4, when he was at his cottage at Flint's pond alone. He said a car drove up containing Mrs. Thayer, another woman and several men, all strangers. The witness said his wife begged him to consider taking her back.

"By all means no," he said he answered. "I'm as near you now as I ever will be."

Mrs. Thayer started to walk away, he said, and seemed to faint. One man gave her a drink, and she returned to the cottage, but the doors were locked.

NURSE MURPHY IDENTIFIED

For the first time Miss Catherine Murphy, a nurse, one of the two women named by Mrs. Thayer, was brought into the trial, when Atty. Tupper had Thayer identify her.

The witness had denied that Desjardin drove to Miss Murphy's house at 19 Patterson st., and the young wmoan was asked to stand.

Thayer admitted he knew her, explaining he had met he. at St. Vincent's Hospital, where he was when suffering from blood pressure. He also admitted he quarreled with his wife over Miss Murphy.

"Wasn't your quarrel because of your intimacy with Miss Murphy" Atty. Tupper asked.

"Absolutely not."

"Was that the time you struck her in the eye?"

JUDGE SCORES MRS. ANDREWS

New Bedford, Nov. 25—Severe criticism of a woman member of the Governor's Council for attempting to influence him in the case of a woman alleged hit-and-run driver, was voiced today in Bristol County Superior Court by Judge Frederick W. Fosdick.

After court, the district attorney's office made it known that a letter had been received by the district attorney from Mrs. Esther M. Andrews, a member of the Governor's Council, asking clemency for the same defendant.

Judge Fosdick's criticism was directed at the Governor's Councillor in the case of Mrs. Margaret J. Bleakney of Boston, charged with leaving the scene of an accident after causing injury.

After announcing that he had received a telephone call at his home in Medford from the Governor's Councillor, Judge Fosdick said:

"I am wise to this woman. I am not going to allow politics to interefere with justice. When a member of the Governor's Council called me up on this case it was a very serious mistake.

"It is obvious that she wanted me to hear this woman's story at a jury-waived trial after acquainting me beforehand with the facts. I will be no party to such a transaction. If this woman insists on a jury-waived trial, I will not sit."

Scrubs Play the Senate Varsity

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Mr. Hoover has signed miniature armistice with Democrats.

But he can't do a thing with the Republicans.

Senator Borah is leaping all over the parade like a man who has just had his shoes shined.

Napoleon said it at Waterloo: "The old guard dies. But it never resigns."

Borah and Norris threaten the administration with a third session.

Mr. Hoover threatens Borah and Norris with another administration.

What difference does a third session make when we are all numb after the second?

All this grief is over Muscle Shoals. That's the place Henry Ford wanted to buy 10 years ago.

They tried to give it to Henry last week. But he had forgotten what he wanted it for.

Many Are Still Searching for Thanksgiving Jobs

(If you have an odd job to be done, or work for one or more men or women in office, store, factory or other business enterprise, call the Municipal Employment Bureau, Liberty 8607, or mail the coupon to 2 Church st., Boston.)

Director John J. Shields of the Municipal Employment Bureau today hoped for a generous response to his special Thanksgiving appeal for jobs, especially odd jobs, for the hundreds of needy unemployed who apply daily for work at this city department.

This is one appeal in behalf of the needy which asks work, not charity, and promises full measure in return for the help extended.

Yesterday was a busy day for the bureau staff, for the number of applicants increased by several score over the usual average, running over 1000 and including nearly 100 women.

Almost every day another municipality follows the lead of Boston in its free employment bureau.

Like this city's long established public welfare department, the Boston municipal employment bureau has been operating so long that it was able to take over with little friction the added burden imposed by widespread unemployment.

It provides an excellent place for practical help to individuals and community in this hour of need, and those more fortunate people who can help, should not fail to do so—and do so now.

GRANDI AIDS SOVIET TRADE

Observers are confident the conference yesterday was a step in the Italian-Russian trade treaty.

Under its terms Russia agrees to buy $10,000,000 of Italian manufactured goods during 1930 and 1931. A Russian organization may flood this part of Europe with cheap Soviet oils.

Italy needs supplies of cheap timber, coal and ore, all of which Russia has in plenty, and there is a pressing need for building up Italian industry to offset the country's tremendous military expenses.

'BLACK HOLE' OF STATE PRISON IS PROBED

Wethersfield, Ct., Nov. 25 (INS)—The "blackhole" beneath the old State Prison here today received the attention of the commission headed by Homer S. Cummings of Stamford to investigate the prison.

Rev. W. H. Smith, rector of Christ Church, Schenectady, N. Y., who was chaplin at the prison, described the "black hole" as consisting of seven solitary confinement cells where the only ventilation is by means of small holes in the doors, there is no light, no sanitary facilities, no bed and mattress, and only one blanket. Heat is so intense prisoners placed there have their clothing removed.

Prisoners are kept there for days at a time, Mr. Smith declared. He never could see why men so confined did not go insane.

Col. Norris G. Osborn, of New Haven, head of the prison board, demanded in trembling voice why the former chaplain had not told the board of such brutality before.

"I had a vivid opinion that you did not want the chaplain's opinion," the minister replied.

Rev. Mr. Smith described how Mouthrope, Landry, and Lalone, known as the "ice box" bandits who escaped last winter from the prison, went to Florida, and were re-captured when a policeman was killed in Jacksonville.

The three youths, returned from the South, were put in the "black hole" for "seven or eight days," and then placed in screened cells on the floor above for several months.

The clergyman cited the case of one Broughton who was shackled to the cell bars with his hands fastened high above his head. His outer clothes were removed. "The hole is hot as the devil," the clergyman quoted Broughton as saying.

The Chicago Better Business Bureau has been asked to look into the matter.

RAIN ADDS NEW FLOOD PERIL IN PARIS

Streets Run Rivers as Thousands Flee Homes; Big Belgian Area Inundated

The lower suburbs of Paris have been especially hit by the flood.

The streets of Viry-Chatillon are streams dotted with rowboats rescuing inhabitants from inundated homes and feeding those who insist on remaining. Many houses seemed in danger of collapsing.

At Choisy-Le-Roi most houses can only be approached by boats or by wading. At Alfortville the waters have flooded cellars and are gradually mountaining to the first floors. At Issy-Le-Moulineaux 30 houses on a little island called Chabane have been evacuated. In all 86 persons, including 26 children, were transported to the mainland.

TORIES UPHOLD BALDWIN

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—Former Premier Stanley Baldwin, today received a vote of confidence as Conservative party leader and came out flatly for an emergency tariff on manufactured goods as soon as the conservative party can return to power.

Baldwin told 800 delegates to the Central Council that he stood at the head of a united party.

He paid special attention to what he described as the lack of results at the recent Imperial conference. After the dominion premiers had urged the mother country to try to found an economic union, he said, they had been sent home empty-handed.

Baldwin launched an attack against practically every item of the MacDonald government's domestic and empire policy.

J. P. Morgan in Scarlet Gown Receives Oxford Degree

Oxford, England, Nov. 25 (AP)—J. P. Morgan, in a flowing scarlet gown and "beefeater" hat, walked through narrow, cobbled ways far more ancient than Wall Street today to receive the highest honor of England's oldest university, the degree of doctor of civil laws, conferred by Oxford.

The little procession, headed by four mace-bearers, marched through the streets without attracting a second glance from shopkeepers and square-capped undergraduates to whom mediaeval pageants are everyday affairs.

But it was the sort of scene which would have stopped traffic in New York's financial district.

At the consultation hall, Mr. Morgan stood with solemn face and with his blue velvet cap in his hand as the university orator read a long address in Latin in which mention was made of the "recent generosity" of the American financier.

This was a reference to Mr. Morgan's purchase of the Bedford Book of Hours and the famous Luttrell Psalter for the British Museum. After the address was completed Mr. Morgan stepped to the high dais and shook hands with the vice-chancellor. He broke into a broad smile as teh audience clapped tumultously.

President Hoover, Ambassador Dawes and General Pershing are holders of degrees similar to that of Mr. Morgan.

The London Times in an editorial today calls the degree a "well won honor."

"A famous father's more famous son," the paper called the American financier.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Correspondent.

Washington, Nov. 25—The iron grip which a little coterie of Republicans has maintained on the House of Representatives for several years will be broken next week when the lame-duck congress assembles.

Legislation which has never been permitted to see the light of day is to be brought out of dusty pigeon-holes and voted upon. The Republican old guard has surrendered.

The result probably will be that the Government will go into the business of operating the Muscle Shoals power plant. That the Wagner unemployment legislation will be passed, that the Shipstead anti-injunction bills will be enacted and perhaps the first constitutional step will be taken to eliminate lame-duck sessions of Congress.

All of these and similar measures have been blocked by the so-called "big three"—Speaker Longworth, Representative Snell of New York chairman of the all-powerful rules committee, and Representative Tilson of Connecticut, the majority leader. Bulwarked by a Republican majority so large to defy opposition, they have ruled with an iron hand and decided among themselves what legislation would be permitted to reach a vote.

The election three weeks ago changed all that.

The Norris bill for Government operation of Muscle Shoals has passed the Senate several times. Each time it has been pocketed by Representative Snell in the rules committee and never permitted to be voted on.

NEWPORT BOAT CAPTURED

New London, Nov. 25—The Newport speed boat Sylvia, famous in these waters for her high power and speed, was seized early today by the Coast Guard off Montauk Point.

According to coast guard officials the Sylvia was caught in the murk of rain and mist running without lights. The coast guard hailed the boat after a chase of about a mile. No shots were fired, the Sylvia slowing down on hail.

No liquor was found on her but she was taken into the base at New London with her crew of five men on the charge of running without lights.

The Sylvia is the fourth boat seized by the coast guard within a week on the same charge of running without lights.

Kills Two in Rage, Then Shoots Self

Yonkers, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Francisco Masone, 35, shot and killed Mrs. Dorothy Foster, 27, and Miss Mary O'Connor, 45, and then took his own life, late last night, in an apartment which the three had occupied for the past two months.

Masone, according to the police, was jealous of Mrs. Foster, whom he regarded as his sweetheart. In a letter found in his possession he indicated his intention to slay the two women and accused Mrs. Foster of infidelity.

Mrs. Foster was slain first and then Miss O'Connor was shot as she attempted to flee. Masone then fired a shot into his brain.

57 PATRIOTIC BODIES FIGHT LEAGUE COURT

Washington, Nov. 25 — The American Coalition of Patriotic Societies is on record today against United States adherence to the League Court and the League of Nations and all entangling alliances.

This coalition co-ordinates the activities of 57 patriotic societies and fraternal organizatons. Chairman John B. Trevor of New York told the assembly he would draft a vigorous resolution today and see that it is presented to Congress as soon as it convenes.

The battle against the Court and the League was begun and waged by Ralph H. Burton, a Washington attorney.

LEAGUE-PACT CONFLICT

He told the coalition the Kellogg pact and the League of Nations are opposed to each other in five different respects and that the pact is meaningless in the light of League provisions.

Some of the organizations interested are Sons of the American Revolution, American War Mothers, Allied Patriotic Societies, Daughters of the American Revolution, Military Order of the World War, National Sojourners, Patriotic Order Sons of America, Independent Order of Americans, Daughters of Americans, Sons and Daughters of Liberty, American Women's Legion, Dames of the Loyal Legion, Disabled Veterans of the World War, American Vigilant Intelligence Federation and others.

WOULD FIGHT REDS

The coalition adopted resolutions calling for a tightening of immigration for two years, deportation of undesirable aliens and governmental action to protect American institutions and industries from Soviet activities.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, New York, head of the Communist investigating committee, told the coalition his committee would recommend that the Department of Justice be given authority to deal with Communistic activities.

VETERANS' PAY MOVE GAINS

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Proposals to relieve unemployment by paying off adjusted compensation certificates held by World War veterans are gaining support in the House.

Representative Patman, Democrat, of Texas, is seeking a majority endorsement to force action on a bill he introduced 18 months ago. Patman estimated it would cost $3,000,000,000 to pay the veterans in full, or $2,000,000,000 if they were paid 80 per cent.

Another plan, providing for cash payment of at least 25 per cent of the value of the certificates has been advanced by Representative Cochran, Democrat, Missouri.

Ex-Afghan King May Regain Throne

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—A movement to restore former King Amanullah to the throne of Afghanistan was reported in a Peshawar dispatch to the Daily Herald today. The Suleiman Khels, a powerful tribe, were said to have turned against King Nadir.

Santa Claus to Bring His Girl Here This Year

Young Boston has a double thrill in store Thursday.

Thanksgiving Day, with turkey and fixin's is only part of it, for the big thrill is the parade of Santa Claus, his son, Santason, and Santa's 10-year old daughter on her first trip here from "Toyland."

The bewhiskered old gentleman and his family will start from Embankment rd. and Beacon st. and go through Beacon to Park, to Tremont to Boylston to Washington and to the Jordan Marsh Company store.

Seven bands, three floats, six Tony Sarg balloons and 50 other features will be in the four divi-

All this takes place directly after he lands in his big amphibian plane on Charles river basin at 10 o'clock in the morning.

Eskimos, Indians, King Neptune, cowboys, pirates, fishermen, gnomes, clowns, aviators, donkeys, elephants, monkeys, bears, cats, dogs, lions and pigs will follow along in the procession.

Then Santa is here until he packs up on the night before Christmas to deliver his presents to those that have been good.

DETROIT CLUE TO BODY FOUND IN NEW YORK

Detroit, Nov. 25 (AP)—Police today advance the theory that the dismembered body which was found in New York yesterday may be that of Alphonse Sirica, former Detroit lawyer, who left here last summer after recovering from a shotgun attack by gangsters in February.

Information in the hands of the police is that Sirica went to Bridgeport, Conn., from Detroit. A newspaper from Bridgeport was found in baggage which was thought to belong to the slain man.

Sirica was shot in the face and head last winter by unidentified men who drove alongside his automobile in the near downtown section. A short time previously he had defended James Fernando, who was convicted of kidnaping five-year-old Jackie Thompson and was sentenced to a long term. Police thought the attack was inspired either by a dispute over the kidnap trial or by Sirica's knowledge of a gangster assassin's identity.

Police Fail to Solve Suitcase Murder

New York, Nov. 25 (INS)—Twenty-four hours of intensive police work today had failed to bring about a solution of New York's "suitcase murder mystery."

The police today dragged the river in search of a bundle after they had taken a man into custody who admitted he had thrown, at the sugestion of another, a weighted valise into the river on Sunday night.

The man apprehended by the police is Levi Bacon, a negro janitor. Bacon said that Sunday night he was walking the river front when an automobile stopped, a man leaned out and said: "Here, mister, throw this (the valise) into the river." Bacon said he did.

Methodists Plan Building Program

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (AP)—A $250,000,000 building program for the Methodist Episcopal Church in the United States to help employment was recommended to the board of home missions and church extension of that church today.

"Ninety-five per cent of the 25,347 Methodist church buildings in the United States need to be replaced, remodeled or enlarged," the report said.

Roosevelt to Eat "Possum 'n' 'Taters"

SACHS MURDER REWARD $7500

Springfield, Nov. 25—Unofficial reports today said a reward of $5000 would be offered by the family of Nathan A. Sachs, New York diamond merchant, slain in Hotel Charles, in addition to $2500 already posted by the Jewelers' Security Alliance of the United States.

Mrs. Annie Ferioli, elevator operator, left for New York with local detectives to view Rogues' Gallery photograps in an attempt to identify two men she carried from the 10th floor before the murder was discovered.

Marchand, 'Witch Murder' Artist, Weds Girl of 18

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Henri Marchand, artist, whose wife was slain at Buffalo a year ago by Nancy Bowen, Cattaraguus Indian woman, at the instigation of Lila (Red Lilac) Jimerson, was married at Troy yesterday to Lillian F. Cooper, 18-year-old stepdaughter of the bridegroom's sister.

"We have been planning to wed for more than three months," Marchand said today. Mrs. Cooper, who is my sister, has been favorable toward the match."

Marchand is 35 years older than his bride.

The murder of Marchand's first wife at Buffalo attracted nation-wide attention. The Indian woman who had been a model for Marchand, was tried for murder, in connection wiht the case. The prosecution produced evidence to show that Lila had become enamored of the artist and had induced Nancy Bowen to kill Mrs. Marchand by telling the old Indian the artist's wife was a witch. Lila pleaded guilty to murder, second degree.

PLOT TO WRECK NEW PLANE PROBED

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

Investigations by the Federal Department of Commerce, aeronautics branch, and Beverly police into the attempts to destroy the Stabilaire monoplane were revealed today by R. Elmer Townsend, Jr., one of the group developing the plane.

The probe has been under way since the crash of the plane at Portsmouth, N. H., last fall. Investigation after the crash showed cylinder bolts loosened, a rudder pedal sawed through, and control wires frayed.

The pilot, Thurle Ellis, narrowly escaped death when the plane crashed.

PLANE REBUILT

When rebuilding of the ship was finished, Albert Downs, Salem inventor and builder of the plane, announced that the ship would be stored at Beverly Airport overnight for testing the next day. That night the plane was secretly transported to Cape Cod Airport, Marston's Mills, and tested shortly after dawn.

During that night, Thursday, 30 shots were fired into the hangar at Beverly, striking a red Moth biplane stored there.

The Stabilaire is a two-place low-wing monoplane embodying several novel features developed by Downes, a former naval aviator, and is claimed to be "fool proof." He has been working on the design for nine years.

GUARDED AT AIRPORT

Powered with a four cylinder-in-line inverted air cooled Rover engine, the little plane cruises at slightly better than 160 miles an hour.

"The events following our attempts to fly the Stabilaire," said Townsend today, "indicates that a 'ring' is trying to keep the ship from being developed. Our ship is painted red and whoever fired the shots into the Beverly hangar saw the red paint on the Moth, and mistook it for our ship."

"We have placed a heavy guard over the ship while it is at Boston Airport, since it was flown here from the Cape."

BERLIN CABINET NEARS CRISIS; BREDT QUITS

Berlin, Nov. 25 (AP)—Chancellor Bruening's government ran into new difficulties today when the Economic party notified the chancellor that it no longer supported the cabinet.

The party charged Chancellor Bruening with relying for support on the Social Democrats "at the sacrifice of the vital interests of the German people and German economy."

Despite today's blow, it was taken for granted that Bruening would continue his course

What can be done with Life Insurance

(5) Guaranteed Education for the Children

COLLEGE education, which was once considered a luxury, later became an advantage, and is today a necessity.

In the average family, the question often is, How to ensure for the children this important preparation for living a life and earning a living? How to do this on limited means? How to safeguard them against the possible loss of the provider of both bread and education?

There is a way for parents to build a fund for this purpose—an Education Fund—through LIFE INSURANCE. The best time to begin is when the children are young and the saving plan through LIFE INSURANCE can be carried out over a long period of years.

Chipso granules give thick, creamy suds instantly!

Mrs. D. W.—
"So much extra leisure now!"

"I don't fuss very much with my washing now," writes a Quincy housewife. "Chipso Granules are certainly all ready to work! I put a little in the tub, turn on the faucet, and soak my clothes in the thick mountain of suds that foams up right away. There's so little rubbing to do, I feel as though I had a laundress."

Mrs. N. W.—
"I never worry about colors"

"When water is piled high with the creamy suds that Chipso Granules make, it feels like velvet to my hands. 'Soap gentle as that to my sensitive skin can't hurt colors!' I thought. My very first washing with Chipso Granules proved I was right. Now I use them for dishes too."

"Suds so quickly—wash done in far less time," says Mrs. W. R. of Somerville

Experienced Chipso users aren't surprised at the results they get with Chipso Granules — they're accustomed to the white, bright, sweet-smelling clothes that Chipso gives them! But they do exclaim over the convenience of having Chipso suds ready-made—in a form that dissolves instantly into sparkling, cleansing suds. Try these new Chipso Granules for dishwashing as well as for the family wash. They're wonderful!

"Prefer to do my own wash now"

"With my new washing machine and Chipso," writes a West Roxbury user, "I find that doing my own washing is really less trouble than bothering with a laundress. Clothes look wonderful, too." Thanks, Mrs. P———. Now you know why Chipso (flakes and granules) is the most popular of all soaps for washing machines.

Mrs. M. Y.—
"Only last week, I cried over my hands"

"I have a great deal of washing to do, and I felt I had to use strong soap to save myself work. My hands got so raw and swollen that I cried. Then I tried a package of Chipso Granules. In one week my hands have improved; and my clothes look better than ever."

Planes Will Supplant Lines, Says Yarrow

London, Nov. 25 (INS)—Shipowners building great liners are shortsighted in the opinion of Sir Alfred Yarrow, marine engineer.

"It is unwise of the English companies to lay down ships so much larger than the Europa and the Bremen," sir Alfred said. "Within 20 years people who want to travel quickly between America and England will fly.

"In a short time high speed in boats will no longer be needed. The multi-engined plane will save days. The fastest liner can only save hours.. Soon the seaplane will varry those who want to go fast."

Glacier Gives Up Prehistoric Fur Covered Lizard

Cordova, Alaska, Nov. 25 (AP)—Reports received from Valdez today said the carcass of a giant lizard-like creature, with fur in perfect condition, had been found on Glacier island, near here.

The creature, repoted to be 42 feet long, including a tail measuring 16 feet, was believed to have been preserved since prehistoric times by being encased in ice in the upper reaches of the Columbia glacier. The head was reported to be six feet long.

Lipton's Cup to Be Gold; Fund Over

The cup to be presented to Sir Thomas Lipton by American admirers will be of gold instead of silver because of the large sum donated, it was announced today.

The cup, symbolizing the esteem in which American hold the sportsman, for which Greater Bostonians contributed $583, will have a base of silver donated by the State of Utah.

Mayor Walker of New York, with whom all contributions were deposited, will make the presentation a week from Thursday.

His Dress Suit Secret Bared, Chicago Man Is Sued by Wife

Chicago, Nov. 25—Mrs. Alma McGill said she knew her husband had a $25,000 estate, but not that he had a dress suit until friends told her of seeing him making merry in night clubs. Even then she scoffed at the idea until she learned he kept it at his office and donned it in secret. All this she related in a separate support suit, demanding that the suit be impounded as evidence and that her husband be enjoined from disposing of any of his estate.

Corpus Christi, Texas, Nov. 25 (INS)—Repairs on the Mathis Dam and on damaged homes were being made today following a flood in the Neuces river valley which resulted from a break in the dam at Lake Lovenskiold.

Damage was variously estimated today to be in the neighborhood of $200,000. Several farm houses were inundated and ten feet of water stood in business houses and homes and cattle in the river bottom land. Residents of the valley were warned in time to flee the flood waters.

"I WAS TRIED IN PASSION'S FIRE"

The Revelations of a Girl Who Tasted the Sweet Poison of Forbidden Love

SHOULD I have been content with the calm serene love of my husband?

Should I have been ready to live and die with no other thrill than that of his mature devotion?

Should I have fled at the sight of another man who kindled in my bosom strange fires?

Should I. have given cold lips to his kisses and closed my ears to his cries of love?

The answer on paper seems simple enough—it should be "YES" to every question above.

Yet in real life, the answer is not so simple, as many a married man and woman have found, to their sorrow.

Under the sweet poison of forbidden love, right sometimes looks wrong and wrong looks right.

We think we can taste this ecstasy once and never again. In our madness, we think that one hour of bliss is worth years of suffering.

It is the mistake I made; the mistake that thousands of women make.

For every stolen hour of sweetness I have paid with heartache. For every fleeting kiss I have suffered remorse.

Yet I am not all to blame. This other man's love was stronger than life itself. It overcame me.

What was I to do? What would any woman do? What would you do?

Should I send my lover away, shutting him forever from my life?

Should I go to his wife and tell her that our love was made in heaven, and ask her to give him up? Should I confess to my husband? Dare to risk his hate, his contempt, his anger?

Or might I hope that in his devotion to me he would free me?

Finally I made my decision. It was a strange decision for a woman to make. Read my story "I Was Tried in Passion's Fire" and see if you think my decision was the right one. This is the story of my life, laid bare with a frankness that startles me. I have left nothing unsaid, concealed nothing, in the hope that by telling the entire truth I will help some other woman who has faced a situation similar to mine. It may help some woman to piece together the threads of her life and achieve a certain nobility of soul, as I achieved it.

THIRD PARTY OF DRYS IN '32 IS PREDICTED

Washington, Nov. 25 (INS)—There will be three presidential tickets in the 1932 election, with the prohibitionists of both major parties organizing a third ticket against the regular Republican and Democratic candidates, Sen. Blease (D.) of South Carolina, the dry "who takes a drink once in a while," predicted today.

Blease named the nominees he believes will represent each of the three parties. They are:

REGULAR REPUBLICAN — Former President Calvin Coolidge and Senator Charles L. McNary of Oregon, as his running-mate.

THIRD DRY TICKET — Senator William E. Borah (R.), of Idaho, with Senator Morris Sheppard (D.), of Texas as running-mate.

Blease said he expected President Hoover would not be a candidate for re-election. He looked upon Coolidge as the logical nominee, if Hoover withdrew.

"If the Democrats nominate a wet candidate, they now intend to nominate Governor Roosevelt, a very fine man.

"If they put an anti-prohibition plank into their platform, the South will not remain Democratic," said Blease.

"The South will stand for prohibition and is for prohibition, whether or not it has prohibition now."

Reno Decree Fails to Hold in Maine

Portland, Me., Nov. 25—A wife or husband resident in Maine cannot be divorced by an action in another state, Judge William H. Fisher of Superior court ruled today. Judge Fisher upheld a decision made in municipal court at Auburn in the case of Edward E. McCollister who, arrested for non-support of his wife, produced a divorce granted in Reno. The court ruled the divorce was invalid so far as Maine is concerned and the defendant must contribute to the support of his wife.

B. & M. Pays Common Dividend of $1

The dividends as declared are: Prior preference, $1.75; first preferred A, $1.25; B, $2; C, $1.75; D, $2.50; E, 1.12½¢ preferred, $1.50; common, $1.

Back Bay Man Held on Abduction Charge

Dr. Bogan Boosted as Medical Supervisor

Editor Boston American:

I cannot refrain from writing the Boston American in regard to the candidacy of Dr. Frederick L. Bogan as medical examiner of Boston public schools.

I have known Dr. Bogan since he first came to the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary as a house surgeon about 1906 or 1907 and he has worked under me there from that time to the present, although he has now risen to the rank of senior surgeon to the hospital. He has always been a devoted worker for the interests of the hospital and a considerate friend to the men both over him and under him who were associated with him on the staff.

In addition his army record is exceedingly good. He rose, I think from the position of surgeon in the Ninth Regiment to surgeon major of the 101st Infantry and saw service on the Mexican border in 1916 and in France in 1917, 1918 and part of 1919, having finally charge of a field hospital on the French front where his work was excellent. He is at present either colonel or lieutenant colonel in the medical reserve list of the United States Army. In addition to this, he was at one time connected with the United States Marine and Public Health Hospital in Chelsea.

While I would not advocate the passing over of a superior man by an inferior man on account of army service, I do feel that when the army service is combined with the other superior qualifications which Dr. Bogan possesses in a marked degree, he is entitled to to extra consideration on account of his extra services in the army and in the charitable hospitals of the city.

Blames Child Workers for Unemployment Problem

Editor Boston American:

I am surprised to see that the people find it so hard to solve the unemployment situation. If children were kept in school until they are 18 years of age there would be plenty of work for everybody. I know of many cases where children work from 8 a. m. to 7 p. m. for about $[illegible] a week. This not only hinders the head of the family, but ruins the future of the child.

Why talk so much about a temporary relief when we could have a permanent one?

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

It pleased me to note in your paper that the Boston Evening American Basket Fund has started. I can call to mind its beginning. It began in a small way. It is now an institution.

The joy that it gave thousands in the past will be more than ever repeated this year. I can call to mind how I lugged up these baskets three or four pairs of stairs with the help of the Rev. Herbert S. Johnson, D. D., then pastor of the Warren Avenue Baptist Church. We did not mind the effort of placing these baskets where they were greatly needed.

The placing of these baskets has a different system today. Like all systems improvements are made. But in those early days it was different. It is an enterprise that deserves a helping hand more than ever this year.

What a pleasure those baskets gave to the little tots. What a comfort they brought to many an anxious mother, knowing Christmas was coming and thinking of her children. What a joy they gave the donors of those baskets that the unfortunate and unemployment had not been forgotten. The Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund has a history and will make it again this season.

Scared by Description of Heaven and Hell

Editor Boston American:

A Boston preacher lately described Heaven and hell. It was a very graphic description. He really scared me. I never heard such a portrayal of these eternal scenes. But then what Shailer Matthews of the University of Chicago is quoted as saying just gave me courage.

"The religious leader of the future must stop trying to scare people to be good, and must help them to be good for something."

This just calmed me. I put that thinking cap on me and rested on that thought. It is worth a good deal.

Urges Stricter Censorship By Movies of Films

Editor Boston American:

I have often read in your paper accounts of books, papers, plays, motion pictures, etc., being censored for immoral sayings or meanings suggested. It surprised me that they don't put a stop to those pictures advertising movie plays where men and women in the pictures hug and kiss in a manner that would make any decent-minded person think they ought to find other methods to advertise their plays or pictures on the billboards.

I don't profess to be an angel without wings, but am only one of a large number of people who think the same as I stated.

Man Out of Jail Faces Hard Problem

Editor Boston American:

Can any of your readers tell me what a man is to do who has been to prison and came out with a desire to go straight. Everywhere I ask for work the fact that I have been to jail is enough to queer me from any prospects I may otherwise have. If society is unwilling to let a man fight the battle of life straight can a man be blamed who slips back into the easiest way?

I have a wife and two children dependent on me, or rather I am dependent on my good wife's $10 weekly to keep me and if any of your readers can suggest any means for me to fight this attitude of society toward me I would greatly appreciate it as I do wish to go straight. H. R. J.

Student Reveals Queer Laws in Some States

Editor Boston American:

There are peculiar laws on the statute books of many states in America. A friend has just been rolling them off to us, in this style:

Some time ago the Legislature in Georgia received a bill making it a ground for the annulment of marriage, if the woman had induced the proposal by artificial means, false hair, rouge or lip stick.

The City of Los Angeles forbid until recently more than one person bathing or occupying a bathtub at the same time.

A Kansas statute of 1913 provides that no mattress on any bed in a hotel shall be made of moss, seagrass, excelsior, husks or shoddy.

In another state every public school teacher had to memorize the Ten Commandments.

There are some old laws on the statute books of the Bay State, one regulating the dress of women which, if enforced, would keep rolling pins working overtime.

He Wants to Know How to Tell a Liar

Editor Boston American:

In talking about the "Art of Lying," a speaker at the Young People's Fellowship a few Sundays ago said:

"If you want to detect a liar, watch his face. Liars always shift their eyes. They can't help it." Then he cited cases in court and added: "Liars also hesitate the fraction of a second before you get their blast."

I would like to know if any of those who heard this method of testing liars have found out if it works satisfactorily. In other words:

Editor Boston American:

There is always some person sputtering about America. If you want to make a sensation, just haul America over the coals. This was done last Sunday by a preacher who gave the public this fresh piece of news, that America was not civilized.

Why look at the side which proves that the devil was having his innings? Why not look at the side where angels are treading, for there are hosts of good people around, good principles, lots of kindnesses; plenty of honored citizens, men and women who are foremost in social reforms? Why cloud your horizon with a lot of racketeers and gangsters? Look back of the clouds and hear angelic people singing "America, the Beautiful."

PROBE FOR BOTH ANTIS, DRYS

Washington, Nov. 25 (INS)—Expenditures of both the prohibitionists and the anti-prohibitionists in the recent senatorial elections will be investigated by the Senate Campaign Funds Committee. There will be a hearing here next Tuesday of the prohibitionists and a hearing in New York the following Thursday of the wets.

All senatorial campaign expenditures by the Anti-Saloon League will be investigated here, while advances made by the Association against the Prohibition Amendment will be scrutinized at the New York hearing. Senator Nye (R), chairman, in announcing the hearings, said the decision had been unanimous to investigate the financial activities of both the wet and dry organizations.

Providence, Nov. 25 (AP)—A complaint may be made to the Canadian government that the British motorboat Good Luck, captured with 501 sacks of liquor off Block Island, Sunday, was fired upon and struck by a one-inch shell and machine gun bullets, and was rammed by the Coast Guard destroyer Porter, Joseph Fitzpatrick, counsel for the boat's skipper, said today.

Coast Guard officials at New London said they had no report of any shooting.

TURKEY STUFFING
if you use Slo-Baked Wonder Bread

WONDER BREAD
IT'S SLO-BAKED

© 1930, Continental Baking Co.

By ALICE ADAMS PROCTOR

SLO-BAKED Wonder Bread has completely upset the old-fashioned idea that good turkey stuffing could be made only from stale bread!

Today many housewives have discovered that the finest stuffing they've ever served for Thanksgiving dinner is made from fresh Slo-baked Wonder Bread!

The extra-fine ingredients used in Wonder Bread and the special slo-baking process eliminate all excess moisture and give you a bread of even, delicate texture.

So when you moisten Wonder Bread crumbs as your first step in making stuffing, they fluff up lightly almost as if baking powder had been added. Quite unlike ordinary bread crumbs, which become so flat and heavy.

With such a good start as this, even the amateur cook can make turkey stuffing that the most experienced housewife would be proud to call her own! All that remains is to add the proper seasoning.

YO HO! YO HO! for the Happy Wonder Bakers, on the air tonight, and every Tuesday evening at 9:30 over WEEI and associated N. B. C. stations.

THANKSGIVING APPEALS FROM HUNDREDS

Thanksgiving will be with us in two days.

For many there will be no Thanksgiving.

Hundreds of appeals for used clothing and other aid from needy families made to the Boston Evening American Helping Hand Department have as yet been unanswered.

A little boy, one of a family of six in South Boston, writes that his father disappeared four years ago. The family was broken up and just recently reunited. Lacking money the family is in danger of parting once again.

Hundreds of letters of this type and others thanking the readers of the Boston Evening American for responding to pleas of the needy are being received daily by the Helping Hand Department.

Checks may be sent to the Helping Hand Editor, 5 Winthrop sq., or you may personally investigate one of these appeals. Clothing, shoes, fuel, food, furniture and other necessaries of life are needed by unfortunate families throughout the state.

SEVEN WANT BASKET
(Refer to Case 48)

I am writing a few lines to say that my mother is not feeling well, and we are six children and my father left us four years ago, and my mother has kept us together by getting a little help around the city. I want to know if I could have a Thanksgiving basket, so that we can have a Thanksgiving dinner with mother? We are from 13 to five years of age.

This boy lives in Boston. Anyone wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 48.

SICK FAMILY NEEDS AID
(Refer to Case 49)

I am writing to ask you if you could please help me out a little. My husband has gone away for three months now and we are almost destitute. I have five children at home and girl in the hospital for 11 years.

I am in need of everything. My children need clothes and shoes and I need clothes for myself. I know we are not going to have any Thanksgiving and not much more for Christmas but if the children had something I wouldn't care so much. There are three girls. The girl 16 has infantile paralysis. I also have a baby eight months. She has no clothes and needs blankets to keep her warm.

There are two boys, one who is 13, and was hurt internally from a fall when he was three, and another 11 who has been sick ever since he was born. Just now he is being treated and already has had eight operations. So you see I have my hands full. I have been under 12 surgical operations and am in a run down nervous condition now. I have worked when I could to help, but have been so sick that I can't do any more.

So if anybody could help me out I would be so thankful as I would like to give the children something for Thanksgiving and will not be able to do so. Hoping I will hear from somebody.

This mother lives in Somerville. Anybody wishing to aid may call the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and refer to Case 49.

MOTHER ASKS AID
(Refer to Case 50)

Please try and help me, as my husband is out of work and I have a little boy in the hospital and three other children besides. I expect the stork in a day or two, and I don't know how I will come out.

I have three boys, 13, 9, 7, and they need clothes, and a little girl four years old. I will accept anything at all. I would like to have coats for the children as they have no overcoats. I would also like some baby clothes, as I haven't any. I hope my appeal will go to some one with a kind heart. I am sure we don't know what we are going to have for Thanksgiving.

This woman lives in Lowell. Aid can be given her by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 50.

AGED MAN SEEKS JOB
(Refer to Case 51)

I am an old man all alone, and cannot seem to find any work at the present time. My home is two rooms, but as I have no work, it is very hard for me to get along. I am not looking for charity, but work—odd jobs—anything to make ends meet.

I am in need of a few things which perhaps some reader of the Boston Evening American would be glad to dispose of—such as pants, shoes, a hat, and a small table or bureau. I shall be glad to work to repay for the above things.

This man lives in Roxbury. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 51.

MOTHER WANTS BASKET
(Refer to Case 52)

I am writing this letter with a broken heart as I never had to ask for help before. My husband is out of work three months now and I have two children. A girl 11 years old and a boy 15 years old. They need clothes and my husband needs an overcoat and suit. He wears size 48 and size six and a half shoes.

I won't have any Thanksgiving dinner unless some kind reader will help me. I have no wood or coal. I work four hours a day myself, but that can't do much for a home and family. I am getting discouraged now, and I am afraid I will be sick if I can't get help. I don't mind myself, it is the children I feel bad for. I hope some good friend will come to my aid and help me get over this terrible situation. I hope we won't be forgotten as I need help.

This woman lives in Brighton. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may learn the address by calling the Boston Evening American Helping Hand, Liberty 4000, and asking for Case 52.

QUEENIE SMITH BUYS TURKEYS FOR NEEDY

Another family among Boston's most needy cases will participate in the Thanksgiving feasts and festivities to be dispensed tomorrow tivities to be dispensed tomorrow by Queenie Smith, star of "The Street Singer," the musical comedy at the Shubert Theater, in conjunction with the Boston Evening American.

When the dancing comedienne visited the Davis Turkey Farm on the Post rd. at South Sudbury yesterday to select the 10 birds which she personally is contributing, P. J. Davis, owner of the farm, became so touched and sympathetic that he gave Miss Smith an extra turkey for "the neediest case."

Miss Smith, her manager, a representative of the American and Al Duffy of the local Shubert forces motored to the turkey farm and there the actress picked from a large flock of birds that are to be killed today and prepared for delivery tomorrow. The little star is going back into the country today and from one of the big truck farms will select all the vegetables that go to properly round out a traditional Thanksgiving turkey dinner.

Then she plans to take all of to-[illegible] postponed her matinee until Thursday and will personally deliver the 11 baskets of the dinner ingredients. All 11 families have been notified that their Thanksgiving Day is to be a very happy one.

entire world have experienced in a long period, and relief at this Christmastide will be needed more than ever.

Even your smallest donation will be of help, so do not hesitate to contribute because you cannot give a lot. There are others who can give in greater measure and to them it is reminded that their greatest gift will not be too much.

Only by the amount of contributions will the size and number of the Christmas baskets be measured. The more that is contributed the larger and fuller the baskets, and the more of them.

LIST OF NEEDY WANTED

It is the ambition of the Boston Evening American to be so successful in this matter that no needy and worthy family in Greater Boston may be without an ample dinner on Christmas Day.

The Christmas Basket Fund therefore and also, is prepared to receive the names and addresses of worthy families, but they must be sent in by mail as it is impossible to handle telephone calls.

School teachers, clergymen, charitable organizations, neighbors, postmen, policemen, firemen and others can send in this required information, and the number in the family and their most urgent needs should be contained in the description, as well as name and address.

The fund has received a substantial start through receipt of $1261.02 proceeds from the Argonne A. A. boxing show at Boston Arena on November 17, and from the Brookline High School-Boston College High football game, November 15, the basket fund's share of the proceeds amounted to $190.20.

Send in your donations and your names to the Christmas Basket Fund Department, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq.

For Junior Holiday Festivities

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

HOME FOR even such brief holidays as those attendant upon Thanksgiving means picking up a few little things for the young girl's wardrobe. And usually those extras that one gets to tide over til the longer Christmas vacation are of a slightly formal nature. All manner of charming afternoon and evening clothes are at the call of young girls this year. Bright young frocks that know how to modify heavy formality for youthful tastes.

SMART YOUNG things are wearing fluffy, swishing, swirling evening frocks of taffetas, with quaint nipped-in waists; and, with the approaching holiday mood, bright colors are pushing black from the center of the stage, various shades of red, most appropriate to the season, emerald and bottle green; and we find brass a color to be reckoned with. There are hints that turquoise and henna will be very much present in the resort mode.

FAMILY JEWELS and heirlooms grow in importance in a day when our frocks look like those of our grandmothers who first wore the jewels. Cameos, miniatures, braided hair pieces, ornate jewelry set with quaint stones, these return to the drawing room and ballroom, sweeping into the jewelry mode with Victorian dignity.

AMONG THE pieces available you will find originals and copies of necklaces with carved pendants or stone set miniatures, enamel bracelets and pins, fascinating old earrings and rings.

IN THIS type of jewelry, gold predominates. Do you remember the gold jewelry that was quaintly etched in black? Much of that is to be found. The combination of crystal and gold has been revived, too. It is especially suited to the charming reproductions of old court jewelry for formal wear. If you like distinctive jewelry, you will be enthusiastic about this vogue.

FACES RECORD YOUR FOOT TROUBLES

Every step you take in painful, ordinary shoes is instantly recorded in your face. Like the moving needle of a recording instrument, every twinge of pain etches sharp little lines about the eyes. The constant strain on leg muscles shows in drooping furrows about the mouth—in pinched foreheads—in generally saggy faces.

That is why women who value the energy of youth—the attractiveness of a youthful face, will wear no shoe but the Arch Preserver Shoe.

Experience has taught them that this scientific shoe actually prevents and corrects most foot troubles. That Arch Preserver Shoes leave the feet as free as if they were bare. That they preserve the swing and grace of youth.

SEN. ROBINSON OPPOSES EXTRA SESSION

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Desire to avoid an extra session of Congress was voiced today by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, upon his return to the capital.

Reiterating his stand for national prohibition, the Democratic leader predicted that the Democrats would not declare themselves for repeal of the eighteenth amendment in the 1932 platform. He expressed the opinion also that the prohibition amendment would not be repealed in the early future.

Senator Robinson issued a statement which he said was in substance that which he wrote to President Hoover recently regarding an extra session of the new Congress.

He wrote:

"In my judgment it is imperative that measures of an emergency character be acted upon as speedily as possible.

"I regard it as indispensable to the public welfare that all cooperate in the passage of measures for relief in the drought-stricken areas.

"The unemployment situation is acute and demands consideration.

"It is no part of my duty to filibuster against appropriation bills.

"Readiness to co-operate in the passage of appropriation bills and emergency measures in no sense implies support on my part of the policies of the Republican party or approval of its record."

The Democratic leader said he would "be glad" to see the export debenture enacted.

THE LAST MILE -:- By Lewis Allen Browne

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Richard Walters, skilled young mechanic, is madly in love with Ethel Simmons, whom he believes to be almost a saint when, in fact, she is quite the reverse and carries on an affair with rich Merton Nissinger, who has tattooed his initial over her heart. Walters hears Nissinger in a speakeasy boasting that he tattooed his initial on several girls. Ethel becomes acquainted with Viola Forsaythe, a model at the school of design where she studies. Viola knows Ethel's secret and scares her into trying to get back some letters from one Kirk Thurber.

CHAPTER 5

MERT'S COTTAGE was locked up.

Ethel was disappointed. She had been cooped up for a week of her ten days when she wasn't ill at all and she wanted Merton very much indeed.

Then she thought of Kirk Thurber. It wouldn't do any harm to stroll down past his cottage. Perhaps she might meet him.

There was a dim light through the heavy shades. Ethel wondered if she dared call. What if Mert were over there visiting? What would he think? She decided that she could say she went over solely to see if he were there.

Ethel went around the back. The door was open. Before she got up on the back porch she heard angry voices. Looking in she saw Viola and Thurber standing by the table in the dining alcove.

"I paid you plenty," Thurber was saying, "more than plenty. Don't hand me that line about innocence stuff."

"Yeah! Well, I've got something to say—you stole my letters——"

Shots Fired

Ethel moved nearer and stared in. Viola faced him, holding a revolver in her hand.

"Put down that gun, you—fool!" Thurber yelled at her.

"Give me the hundred thousand or I'll kill you!"

"Drop that gun, you crazy loon!"

"Oh, I am, am I!" Viola screamed.

There was a flash and a report.

Ethel felt a stinging pain and heard more shots as she fell backwards off the porch.

She screamed in fright.

The fall was only a few feet. Ethel landed in a shrub.

She distinctly heard two other shots following instantly the first one. She wondered if she would die—she wondered where the bullet struck her—there seemed to be a smarting, burning sensation on her thigh.

"Who's that? Who's there?"

It was Viola's voice. She was on the back porch, gun in hand. Ethel could see her.

Instantly she remained silent, and was well hidden in the black shadow beside the porch, half buried in the thick shrub. She had sense enough not to stir, nor to call out. The thought came that Viola had probably killed Kirk Thurber and that since she was desperate enough to do that she would be desperate enough to kill her so she couldn't be a witness.

It was a wise decision. Viola Forsaythe was in a most desperate mood. She realized that she had killed Thurber. If she had found Ethel there she would have shot her and made it seem that Thurber and Ethel had shot each other in a suicide pact or some such thing.

No Evidence

Slowly Viola went back into the house. Ethel wondered how she dared to do such a thing. Her leg was bleeding, but she moved it without difficulty and decided that she wasn't seriously hurt.

Slowly and noiselessly she got to her feet. To her great relief the bullet had evidently made only a scratch.

She listened. There was a slamming of drawers. Ethel guessed correctly that Viola was searching for the letters—not to use as evidence against Kirk Thurber now, but to prevent them from being used as evidence against her.

Slowly Ethel moved back threw the rear yard. She knew a path ran there and joined a wide trail through the grove to Hampton village.

Still no lights in Mert's cottage. She hurried up the trail and came out not far from Mabel Shelton's home. She went there at once and around to the back door, where she pushed the buzzer button.

Three times in quick succession she jabbed the button before she heard steps and Mabel Shelton's frightened voice, through the door, "Who's there?"

"It's Ethel—hurry, let me in."

She heard the bolt shoot back. The door opened just a little and Mabel peered out.

"Why, Ethel, you darned little fool—you scared me."

Ethel stepped in and half collapsed.

"Here, here—what's the matter? Has Mert been abusing you?"

"No—I've been shot—I'm not hurt much—don't scream, keep quiet, put on just a dim light—I'm scared stiff."

'Don't Die Here!'

"Where are you shot? For God's sake don't come here and die on my hands——"

Mabel Shelton became almost hysterical with fear.

Ethel got out of her clothes and Mabel examined the wound.

"It's only a scratch, dear—and there's a hole—two holes through your skirt—what happened? Don't tell me Mert shot you?"

Mabel cleaned the slight scratch which had stopped bleeding. She got ointment and absorbent cotton and plaster and deftly bandaged the scratch, then she ran and got something for Ethel to drink.

"It's early yet. I'm going to telephone to mother that I'll stay with you tonight."

Ethel telephoned home and then took another drink.

After that she told Mabel Shelton the whole thing, from the time she became acquainted with Viola Forsaythe.

"Good lordy, don't ever let Mert know about this," Mrs. Shelton advised. "He and poor Kirk Thurber were great pals. He'll be suspicious about your calling and he might even tell the police who did it, out of revenge, and drag you in as a witness."

"Don't be silly, Mabel—as if I'd ever let a soul know."

"Just think of it! He may be dead, he may be bleeding to death down there—dying- and we can't go and we can't send anybody. I ought to send word to the police."

"Don't you do it!" Ethel screamed. "Don't you dare! It would ruin me if I was mixed up in it. Anyway, it's none of my funeral. I didn't even know him. I had nothing to do with it."

Cleaned Shoes

They finally got to sleep.

ROBERT H. DAVIS
("Bob" Davis)
Noted Newspaper Correspondent

"Winning the public's favor is no longer a matter of shouting from the housetops—today you must offer them something concrete. When I visited Reidsville and went through the LUCKY STRIKE plant, I found one explanation for the growth of LUCKY STRIKE. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of the tobaccos is a splendid example of achievement. It is the new order of the day."

Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why TOASTING includes the use of the Ultra Violet Ray. LUCKY STRIKE—the finest cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so TOASTING removes harmful irritants that cause throat irritation and coughing. No wonder 20,679 physicians have stated LUCKIES to be less irritating!

Consistent with its policy of laying the facts before the public, The American Tobacco Company invited Mr. Robert H. WOMAN HAS 2 HELD IN $1500 STOCK FRAUD

Freaky Storm Presages Chill Wave Here

Grace Has Been Told They Get $100,000

By MAY CHRISTIE

(Copyright, 1930)

HOW THE STORY STARTS

Wilda Gardner, bookkeeper in a hardware store, is in love with Logan Townsend, who "has not spoken yet."

He is no Adonis, Wilda thinks, but he has a rare smile. This smile also attracts Bess Avery, a stenographer in an office near Logan's. Wilda's mother, Garcie, has been strangely distracted since the father died. He is understood to have left much money and she plans to leave the poor little cottage in which they live in Boston and get in touch with a gaier life

"YES. YES. But you're like your father, too—in a way—so cool—and settled down—and practical—"

Cupboard Ajar

Mother's Suit Gone

Thank heaven she hadn't said "efficient!" thought Wilda grimly.

Her mother's emotional outburst quieted, they had a long talk together . . .

As she neared her home that rainy summer night, this talk came back to Wilda, brushing away the high and happy mood that the anticipation of Logan's visit had engendered.

And when she fitted her key into the lock and walked into the little house that had been her home for over 20 years, the rooms were eerily silent, empty.

Where was her mother?

Key in hand, and calling out:

"Grace! Hello, there, Gracie!"

Wilda swung through the living-room and tiny dining-room beyond, out to th kitchen of the little house in Flatbush.

Didn't Suit Grace

She Was Too Sallow

There was no sign of preparation of supper.

Swiftly she went upstairs. The blinds were half drawn down, although there was no sun. She went in Gracie's room, saw through the dimness her mother's house-dress flung on a chair, and noticed that the bureau drawer where her gloves were kept was half open, and the dressing-table in disorder.

The clothes cupboard was ajar Gracie's black suit was gone that was 1 new one that had cost ten dollars . . . surely the rain would spoil it?

Gracie hated black A thought flitted through Wilda's mind was it disloyal? . . . that Gracie disliked her somber garb so much she would be glad to have it ruined

Tidied Room

Thoughts Run Wild

Wilda felt mean. Yet if it were true she couldn't blame her mother. To some people, black was more than a mere emblem of mourning. It was a terribly depressing factor

And it didn't suit Grace, either She was sallow Black made her skin seem muddier, and emphasized the unbecoming shadows underneath her eyes. It even seemed to bring the gray bits in her hair more into prominence.

Come to think of it, wasn't it queer that dad, who had always vetoed Gracie wearing colors, and once when she had bought a bright sweater had reduced her almost to tears with his sarcasm, should now have power to reach beyond the grave and put his wife in black—that unbecoming black that seemed to blot out her good looks and put at least ten years on her?

Mechanically Wilda tidied up

SEVERE COLD IS DUE FOR HOLIDAY

Snow Covers Big Area; Suffering in the Midwest; Fog Halts Boston Traffic

A storm blanketed the city this afternoon, with rain falling intermittently, the temperature dropped several degrees and weather bureau officials said a freaky storm might serve as a harbinger of a severe cold wave.

Freezing temperatures were reported today through the central and southern states, with snow flying in many sections, the nearest in the Montpelier Vt., region

Fog and poor visibility, with the rain, slowed up traffic on land and sea in this vicinity and washed out all flying Lights had to be switched on all over the city as the low-hanging clouds swept over in mid-afternoon The mercury fell to 50 degrees at 3 p m.

The unofficial forecast: Mostly cloudy with some rain tonight and possibly Wednesday; somewhat cooler Wednesday; moderate southerly winds becoming easterly Wednesday

Rain which started falling late yesterday afternoon continued through the night, but only .5 inches of precipitation were recorded up to 8 a. m. today.

In the early hours the rain was just heavy enough to cloud automobile windshields, and to render visibility so poor that all flying was cancelled at the airport, while shipping proceeded slowly along the coast

Chicago with a temperature of 16 degrees today was in the grip of the cold wave and in all the large cities in the interior the unemployed were driven to charity shelters as the mercury tumbled Second cold wave is also sweeping out of the northwest and has reached Minnesota.

Freezing temperatures were reported today throughout the western portions of New York Pennsylvania and Virginia and in northern Georgia. Rain or snow was falling in Wisconsin, Pennsylvania, Kentucky, Indiana, Tennessee and Georgia eastward to the Atlantic Coast

Winds were blowing strongly along the coast, being west and northwest from Hatteras to New York, and southerly from New Haven to Halifax

Making the Most of Today's Dollar

Interested Service Vital Today—Real Values, Not "Bargains," Wanted

(The fifth of a series of interviews with Massachusetts women leaders, giving their suggestions to those who buy goods and to those who sell them, concerning their mutual and vital problem of receiving and giving full value in every particular for every dollar spent. The sixth interview will appear in the next issue of the Evening American.)

By MRS. BRADBURY CUSHING

Wife of the Manager of the Hotel Statler

THE ONLY WAY we know anything is to inform ourselves on the subject we are interested in. And if there ever was a time when women need to be informed that time is right now regarding value for the money we spend.

MRS. BRADBURY CUSHING

We have no right to complain if we do not stop to think our own problems out, each one of us, and budget our incomes to fit the needs of our families.

No woman is too busy to take time to figure out what she has to have and what she has to buy it with.

Boston has so many good stores that it is simple to visit those in which we can each afford to buy, and if we don't know just how to buy all we have to do is to ask for help and almost any store will gladly give this assistance. In other words, we must help ourselves if we want to be helped by others, and speak up if in doubt.

The first thing we all expect, of course, when we go into a store is interested service, courtesy. If a man is only selling me a bag of peanuts I will buy it more cheerfully if he is interested enough to make the transaction in a kindly, helpful spirit.

Department heads do well to call their people together once a week and remind them that neighborliness oils the machinery of business and sends customers away from that store feeling better, feeling satisfied and happy with their purchase.

I know that stores have this ideal, but when we go to shop it is sometimes strangely absent especially when we are in a hurry, as many professional women are when they shop. It does not take much talent just to be kind and by that I mean for a salesgirl to know her stock so thoroughly that she can size me up quickly and show me appropriate things without my having to beg to see something else

You may remember how the clerks of an old-time store, years ago, used to put on that grand duchess air as if to say to the ordinary, not so smartly dressed woman shopper who ventured in that store, "What are you doing in here?" That spirit has completely gone from our Boston stores.

I never got a bargain in my life—I always paid for just what I got, and women who imagine they are getting bargains have often discovered to their sorrow that they got no such thing. When I buy good things and pay good prices I want value and I demand value.

Here, a little while ago I bought an evening gown with little points of maline sewn on the skirt. When the girl delivered it I shook it out of its wrappings and some points fell off the skirt. I told her to take it right back and have it properly sewn before I would accept it. She said, languidly, "Oh, that's the way everything is made nowadays; especially delicate gowns are sewed delicately." Inspection of all outgoing merchandise would correct this; our leading stores have proven that this can be done

Search of the ruins of a small house at 3 Montrose ave., Wakefield, for bodies following a fire that swept the dwelling early today, was abandoned by police when it was learned that a family planning to occupy the house had not yet done so.

AGREE TO CUT CONNECTION CHARGE

Suburban Gas and Electric Company to Make Connection Refund to 900 Patrons

A partial victory in the fight of Revere and Winthrop residents against connection and service charges for gas and electricity was announced today as the Public Utilities Commission opened a hearing on the matter.

The consumers had protested charges of $5 for connection and disconnection and the 50 cents a month service charge.

Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere announced that the Suburban Gas & Electric Co. had consented to abolish the connection charge for all-year-around residents and to make refunds to 900 customers.

"I believe if the company will investigate the effects of its service charge, it will likewise abolish it, and I am willing that this hearing be continued until they have a chance to do so," said Mayor Casassa. After others were heard the hearing was postponed until Jan. 21.

The company pays 12 per cent dividends on its stock at par and 9.57 per cent on par plus premiums, the commission was told by J. S. Cartwright of Winthrop. He said rates on electricity should be cut to 10½ cents per kilowatt hour, with a $25 a year minimum for the benefit of the company.

Cartwright also said that customers' deposits total more than $7,000 on which the company pays 6 per cent interest while it has an investment of $110,000 in the Saxon Terminal Co. on which it draws 8 per cent. This, he said, showed the company was profiting by its deposit system.

Several speakers including J. F. Cahill of Revere and Elisabeth H. Clay of Point Shirley, Winthrop, protested against making summer residents pay the connection charges. Lucy Perlmutter of Revere, Representatives Carroll and Airola and Selectman John P. Clancy of Winthrop also spoke.

Belanski was grilled by Asst. Dist. Atty. Bernard J. McCabe on his alleged confession of August 1, when he was arrested in Boston. He said he had been drinking heavily and was ill that day and did not know what he said.

In rebuttal, the government put on four policemen who testified Belanski was neither ill nor drunk.

THOUSANDS TO GET HOLIDAY DINNERS

Salvation Army, Volunteers of America and Others in the Drive to Feed Needy

With Turkey Day less than two days away, Boston today began making preparations for the annual assault upon the luscious bird.

Charitable institutions began a final drive to swell their total contributions in order to take care of the ever mounting list of unfortunates who are hoping to be the recipients of some sort of feast for the holiday.

The Salvation Army will present more than 2500 dinners to poor and needy families in addition to supplying a chicken dinner at its South End emergency kitchen. More than 150 dinner baskets will be delivered to poor families throughout the city, while the inmates of charitable institutions conducted by the Sallies in Greater Boston also will be served old-time dinners.

MANY FACE HUNGER

The greatest demand in the history of the Volunteers of America is causing a last-minute effort on the part of officials to raise the needed money so none of the 1500 families who have already applied for Thanksgiving food may be disappointed. Col. Walter Duncan said today that unless an immediate response is made on the part of the public many deserving families will go without their dinners.

Tomorrow at the Industrial School for Crippled and Deformed Children, the annual dinner will be served to the 110 pupils. The dinner fixings and all will be served through the kindness of friends of the institution who have contributed funds in response to an appeal made through the newspapers.

SHOW AT DEER ISLAND

At Deer Island a full course Thanksgiving dinner will be served inmates, with a motion picture show in the afternoon. The day will be a holiday. Charles Street Jail inmates will be entertained with a program of movies and vaudeville acts from various Boston theaters Thursday morning followed by a turkey dinner at noon.

The city's almshouse at Long Island will furnish motion pictures and special boxes of candy to women while the men will receive a supply of tobacco. A turkey dinner will be served at noon.

Warden Hogsett of State Prison, Charlestown, has arranged a motion picture show in the morning, followed by an hour's recreation in the yard and a complete turkey dinner. The afternoon will be spent in holiday manner.

MANY SPECIAL TRAINS

Railroad companies announced special sections for various trains running to and from Boston with many additional cars attached to regular trains. Bus companies, steamship lines and all transportation systems were lining up their resources for the yearly migration of thousands of people to their old homes.

Railroad service for Thursday will be on the usual Sunday schedules, with many special trains being operated on both the Boston & Albany and Boston & Maine. Extra cars will be added to the usual trains and the noon train to New York and the 4 o'clock train will be run in two sections.

Heavy travel, both to and from Boston, is expected for Sunday and all trains will be run in sections and extra cars provided where necessary.

Mystery Shot Perils Girl

MISS LILLAS MANN of School ave., Waltham, points to hole in window of her home, caused by a phantom marksman, firing into the kitchen at her sister, Miss Catherine Mann.

TRUCK TOPPLES POLE; 4 HURT

A parked truck rolled down the steep grade of Henchman st., North End, today, snapped off an electric light pole which fell with its live wires to the street, injuring four persons, and struck another truck at Fisk wharf, across Commercial st.

Those injured, none seriously, were Mrs. Marie Schiavone, 55, of 21 Henchman st.; Raymond Grande, 24, of 16 Foster st.; Pellegrino Bentolli, 29, of 11 Foster st., all North End, and Charles Ava, 25, of 25 Amherst st., Roslindale. All received their injuries when the pole toppled.

The truck that rolled down the hill had been parked by Giuseppe Meli of Commercial st. Lewis A. Perrotte of East Boston was the driver of the truck it hit. Both trucks were damaged.

GHOST GUNMAN SHOOTS AT 2

A second shot fired at a woman through a window of her home was reported to police in Waltham today, following a shot at Miss Catherine Mann, 18, of 28½ School ave., while she was in her kitchen.

The new report came from Miss M. E. Hill of 60 Fiske st., Waltham, who said that on Saturday while she was in dining room a bullet crashed through the window, narrowly missing her.

Police believe some prowler has formed the habit of annoying women by firing shots close to them.

Miss Mann's father, Charles Mann, believes, however, the bullet fired at his daughter was intended to hit her. He said children saw a man run from the back yard after the shot was fired last night.

ACID CONDITION

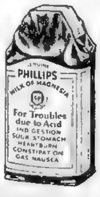
the common cause of pain and discomfort after eating . .

GET RID of your dread of pain after eating. Eat without fear of "indigestion," sour stomach, disagreeable gas or headaches.

When your food ferments, "disagrees," lies like a lump in your stomach, it's a sign of too much acid. You need not resort to crude methods—take instead an anti-acid that will correct the condition. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

A spoonful of this pleasant-tasting soothing fluid neutralizes many times its volume of acid. It restores the proper alkaline balance to an acid-soaked stomach and bowels—assists these organs to function as they should.

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia is what you need when a bad breath, coated tongue, headaches, nausea or biliousness indicates an over-acid condition. Take a spoonful today and for several days and see how it sweetens the system. You won't be nearly so liable to colds or sickness. All drugstores—in 25c and 50c bottles.



Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid, never a tablet. Look for the name Phillips on the bottle.

ONCE UPON a time [illegible] fairy story [illegible] the Messrs. Shubert placed Queenie Smith and "The Street Singer" upon their local [illegible]. More than a full season ago [illegible] viewed it with [illegible] though it was [illegible] ished, and [illegible] thing likely to [illegible] hard times [illegible] ening. For once at least, in a 20-year stretch of [illegible] and sometimes [illegible] nostication, the reviewer made a fair shot. For Queenie Smith and "The Street Singer"—and you must accept them as an established unification of good entertainment—have survived all the pitfalls of a theater in distress.

REFITTED to some extent and replenished with talents that escaped the eye 18 months ago [illegible]

Nicholas Young

[illegible] usually musical comedy. Here however is an old story built up, improved and made fit for every body at all times. Whoever [illegible] the Shubert [illegible] "The Street Singer" [illegible] nursed it [illegible] the golden [illegible] able.

THERE HAVE BEEN [illegible] changes, alterations and improvements in the [illegible] story of Americans abroad. None of these however has been lacking in its influence on the faithful disciple of musical comedy nor has it stemmed an eager willingness to embrace it unflinchingly. For, if the truth must be told "The Street Singer" soars far above its [illegible] mishing companions now playing the nation's stages. In its personnel, this spirited melange of dance, music and romance naturally begins with Queenie Smith, a blithesome [illegible] pensities. She [illegible] reasonably well and [illegible]. Undoubtedly she could give better account of herself [illegible] given half a chance.

NOTWITHSTANDING the structural limitations of "The Street Singer," Miss Smith takes things in hand [illegible] dances [illegible] when the score [illegible] self a [illegible] ing most [illegible] what we [illegible] the talents of George Hassell [illegible] old Castle Square [illegible] town. [illegible] in girth [illegible] plied in spirit [illegible] comedy.

NO MUSICAL COMEDY [illegible] complete [illegible] its [illegible] Leach the [illegible] of "The Street Singer" [illegible] single point [illegible] we did not [illegible] comedy [illegible] baritone [illegible] us much of a [illegible] age they have been [illegible] sary items to complete a general average. Mr. Leach by the [illegible] does not fall into this class. We may pass over his [illegible] gesture, but not his personality nor his stringent qualities. He at last—and he seems quite [illegible] to this reporter—is an actor who has answered musical comedy's desperate cry for leading men. In "The Street Singer" he more than fills the bill.

IF THINGS improve with [illegible] as the doctors tell us they [illegible] "The Street Singer" for the moment seems to prove the [illegible] nosis. More than a year [illegible] reviewed it and reported [illegible] show worth [illegible] In its fulfilment as you [illegible] at the Shubert it remains good entertainment, better now than ever before.

O. was all ready to do "White Shoulders" starring Evelyn Brent when they had to stop production because they simply couldn't find a leading man. Jack Holt and Thomas Meighan who were wanted had other plans so now the picture has been indefinitely postponed. But the work must go on. So another story has been found for Evelyn, who is known to her friends as Betty.

The new story is "Madame Julie," a French stage play by [illegible] and I am told [illegible] that I mean [illegible] who can [illegible] with [illegible]

HERE Is Louella O. Parsons [illegible] little note [illegible] Charlotte Greenwood. Not only was she the reason that Buster Keaton leaves [illegible] "Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," but she is to make a feature length picture of "Meet the Wife." Remember, the play in which Mary Boland was so delightful? The Christie brothers who have an R. K. O. release will make this picture. While I am on the subject of Buster, Lew Lipton who wrote so many of Buster's comedies has just completed an original story called "An Old French Custom." Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has purchased it and I [illegible] it is to have an [illegible] Mr. Lipton [illegible] Howard Hughes [illegible] [illegible] who can [illegible]

Most people agree with me that she was miscast in Maurice Chevalier's last picture. However we shall see when she plays opposite Jack Oakie in his football picture. Other news item of interest are the signing of Albert Gran as the king in "The Command Performance" by James Cruze. John [illegible] who was all ready to go to England on a trip [illegible] an important part in "All Women Are Bad" at the Fox studio. OUR MAIL IS SOMETIMES [illegible] and sometimes unpleasant. From New York came two communications, one by wire and one by letter. Norton Downey wired to tell me he is opening his supper club at the Hotel Delmonico in New York and that among the first reservations were Corinne Griffith, Walter Morosco, the Walter [illegible], Marilyn Miller and Buddy Rogers. Doesn't it sound like Hollywood went to New York? It certainly did and how. Another letter came from a young man named Davey F. Hess.

"The only thing about the Hearst papers that I don't like is your column. It is I, I, I everytime I read you I get mad at myself."

I could quote Mark Twain who said only kings and people with tapeworms should use we. Any way Davey thanks for giving us a tumble we are glad you occasionally read us even if you don't approve.

D. W. Griffith's "Abraham Lincoln" will be screened at Loew's State next Friday for its first popular priced exhibitions, according to an announcement from Manager Joseph H. Brennan. More than 112 principals are cast in the picture, which includes 90 scenes and 70 sets. The whole pageant of Lincoln's life passes in review with the romance of the martyred President and Ann Rutledge prominently stressed.

IDA MOORE

MISS MOORE does sterling work in "Street Scene," at the Wilbur. Next Monday night the play will move into the Majestic.

STREET SCENE FOR MAJESTIC

Boston has taken to "Street Scene," William A. Brady's production of Elmer Rice's Pulitzer prize play. Theatergoers ask for more of it. It was inevitable that it would have to stay here longer than its originally planned run of four weeks at the Wilbur. A way was found to have "Street Scene" moved to the Majestic next Monday night. Here theatergoers will have the advantage of a larger stage and a larger seating capacity.

It is interesting to note that Crosscup-Pishon Post, the Boston advertising men's post of the American Legion, has purchased the performance for the opening night of "Street Scene" at the Majestic, using the proceeds for the benefit of the unemployed and needy veterans to help provide Christmas cheer for them and their families.

This last week's performances at the Wilbur include an extra Thanksgiving matinee in addition to the regular Wednesday and Saturday matinee performances.

The picture will close its run at the final screening on Thursday evening. All subsequent feature pictures will open their engagement on Friday.

Stage and screen go 50-50 on the honors at the Scollay this week. Thus Elliston Vinson easily counts up 100 points for a topnotch program at his theater, with "Vinson Vaudeville" (the term is our own coinage) shining brightly with seven good acts. It's a big show, proving that Mr. Vinson, already selected to do the choosing of variety bills for a number of Publix houses in and out of town, is some day going to be stepped up higher by the Katz organization. He is a real showman and knows his business from A to Z and even through the "etc.," which used to be added at the end of the alphabet in our long ago school days.

THE FEATURE picture is "The Doorway to Hell." It is a gangster film, and one who has seen his fill of such things might think this was "just another." But in some ways it is one of the best of them all. It has flaws; for instance, there are weak spots in the direction, and the story wabbles a bit at times. It has much hokum of the tearful kind, and a little too much mock heroics; but it glories in telling highlights of underworld life, some of the sequences being as real as reality itself. The crook characters in general are excellently delineated; we are told that some of the "extras" were culled from crookdom. They certainly look and act the part, which may be taken by them as meaning they may after all be stellar screen personalities.

Charles Judels, as ever, turns in a good job. Lewis Ayres is clever as the gang chief, but is miscast as far as his character goes. He is developing fast, this youth; and something about his hard boiled racketeer strikes us as reminiscent of the sterling methods of that notable actor, Thomas C. Jackson.

ON STAGE, there is unalloyed provision of pleasure. Topline honors are divided between Gus Edwards' "The Tree Sitters" and Harry J. Conley of musical comedy and screen fame. The Edwards group are a big hit with their offering. The work of Larry Ellinger as Calvin Coolidge and Maurice Chevalier, and the expert tap dancing of Ina Ray are very bright spots of this miniature revue.

Another number, called "Along the Rio Grande," featuring Frances Hart, Bennie Fairbanks and the "Scollayettes," is extremely well staged.

Rome and Collon stop the show with their clever comedy dancing. Bea Starr is in a class by herself for aerial ballerina work, and the "Scollayettes" shine again, this time in an acrobatic number called "Sixteen Legs" and the beautiful "Rio Grande" presentation.

"The Doorway to Hell" is also on the Fenway screen this week.

HAINES FILM TOPS BILL AT ORPHEUM

A story of a master-crook who directs the activities of a gang of bank robbers by giving out clues in nightly radio talks, forms the idea behind "Remote Control," now at Loew's Orpheum. William Haines has the role of manager of the broadcasting station who becomes involved in the robberies but manages to prove his innocence by tracking down [illegible].

Mary Doran

[illegible] Polly Moran, Mary Doran, Charles King, Wilfred [illegible] Warner, Richmond and Edward Brophy give capable performances.

The vaudeville program this week is diversified and diverting. At the head of the bill is the droll Bob La Salle, widely-known variety comedian.

The Novelle brothers, famous comedy and vaudeville funsters, riotously clown around the stage and offer the knockabout comedy act which they have innumerable times presented by command before the royal heads of the world.

The Gale and Carson revue is featured by variety in the matter of songs and dances, and filling out the bill are Charles Derickson, dramatic tenor, and Burton Brown, young concert pianist, in a distinctive musical presentation, and the Four Kadex, aerial thrillers.

'LIVELY GIRLS' AT GAYETY

"Step Lively Girls" is one of the snappiest shows which has been offered this season at the Gayety. There were plenty of principals who could sing [illegible] and strut. Even the chorus [illegible] have specialties.

[illegible] songs charmingly. Evelyn [illegible] was another star whose [illegible] numbers won [illegible]. From start to finish there was an abundance of girls who could and did entertain.

There was comedy too. Harry Bentley was the leader of the [illegible]. Charles [illegible] and George Lewis were [illegible]. There was plenty of [illegible] one of the [illegible] a prolonged roar.

There will be a [illegible] night show tomorrow when whole company will [illegible] special numbers, some in [illegible] burlesques and others [illegible] promised. [illegible] Hounds will also have [illegible] numbers.

Lincoln Might Be On Thanksgiving Night's Big Card ↕ Honest Abe Was Best Wrestler In Middle West

How Rail Splitter Pinned His Rivals

It is a lucky thing that Paul Bowser and Abraham Lincoln were not born in the same era. If Abraham Lincoln were alive today, and a young man and as good a wrestler as he was when he was clerking in Denton Offutt's store in New Salem, Illinois, Paul Bowser might have coaxed him away from his Blackstone. Paul would have plastered Honest Abe's name on all of the wrestling bill boards and it would be Abe Lincoln, instead of Jack Sherry, another corn fed grappler from the Middle West, who would be wrestling Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship in the big Christmas Fund Show of the BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN here on Thanksgiving Night.

George Underwood

Bowser has a habit of going out into the highways and byways and digging up wrestling phenoms. Just like he dug up Jack Sherry the giant half Cherokee Indian, half Irish farm hand out there in the Corn Belt and brought him East to almost topple Gus Sonnenberg from the wrestling throne—and may topple Dynamite Gus in the big bout at the Arena on Thursday night.

Bowser would have discovered Abe Lincoln and brought him East to excavate the gold there is in the wrestling hills.

Didn't know Abraham Lincoln was a wrestler? Shucks have you forgotten your schoolboy history? Don't you recall how the Rail Splitter almost squeezed the gizzards out of the bully in front of the country store? Honest Abe was a good wrestler, a great wrestler in the days when there were more good wrestlers to the square acre than ever before or since. Everyone wrestled in Lincoln's time. Ever [illegible] rural communities. It was [illegible] favorite sport of the farm hands of the West and the factory hands of the East. No one ever pinned Abe Lincoln's shoulders to the greensward.

There are two things which Ida Tarbell, the writer, knew more of than any other person in the world. One was Standard Oil. The other was Abraham Lincoln. Let Miss Tarbell tell you something of the doings when Honest Abe was clerking in Denton Offutt's story in New Salem, Illinois, his ability as a wrestler and one of his victories. Here's Ida, now. Tune in folks!

REMEDY FOR FOULING

"There was near the village a settlement called Clary's Grove. The most conspicuous part of its population was known as the 'Clary's Grove boys.' They exercised a veritable terror over the neighborhood and yet they were not a bad set of fellows.

"Denton Offutt, Lincoln's employer, was just the man who loved to boast before such a crowd. He seemed to feel that Lincoln's [illegible] shed glory on himself and [illegible] declared the country over that [illegible] clerk could lift more, throw [illegible] run faster, jump higher and wrestle better than any other man in the county.

"The Clary's Grove boys of course felt honor bound to prove this false and they appointed their best man one Jack Armstrong to throw Abe. Jack Armstrong, according to the testimony of all who remembered him, a powerful twister, square built and strong as an ox, the best made man that ever lived. Everybody knew that a contest between him and Lincoln would be close. Lincoln did not like to 'tussle and scuffle.' He objected to 'wooling and pulling,' but Offutt had gone so far that it became necessary to yield.

"The match was held on the ground near the grocery. Clary's Grove and New Salem turned out generally to witness the bout, and betting on the result ran high, the community as a whole staking their jack-knives, tobacco plugs and 'treats' on Armstrong. The two men had scarcely taken hold on each other before it was evident that the Clary's Grove champion had met a match.

The two men wrestled long and hard, but both kept their feet. Neither could throw the other, and Armstrong, convinced of this, tried to 'foul.' Lincoln no sooner realized the game of his antagonist, than furious with indignation he caught him by the throat and holding him out at arm's length, he 'shook him like a child.' Armstrong's friends rushed to his aid, and for a moment it looked as if Lincoln would be routed by sheer force of numbers, but he held his own so bravely that the 'boys' in spite of their sympathy, were filled with admiration. What bade fair to be a general fight ended in a general handshake, even Jack Armstrong declaring that Lincoln was the best fellow that ever broke into camp.

From that day at the cock fights and horse races, which were their common sport, he became the chosen umpire; and when an entertainment broke up in a row—a not uncommon occurrence—he acted the peacemaker without [illegible] the peacemaker's [illegible] fate.

Ida Tarbell is not the only historian who discourses on Abraham Lincoln's wrestling ability. Irving Bacheller in his "A Man for the Ages," tells how the Rail Splitter wrestled the Rev. Steve Nuckles, a circuit riding preacher, who had a great reputation as a wrestler throughout the Middle West and then grappled with Sampson Traylor.

ABE AND THE PARSON

"Abe modestly stepped forward. The men took hold of each other collar and elbow. They parried with their feet for an instant. Suddenly Abe's long right leg caught itself behind the left knee of the minister. It was the hip lock as they called it in those days. Once so [illegible] the stronger man was sure to prevail and quickly. The [illegible] rider—the minister—stood against it for a second until Abe sprung his bow. Then the heels of the former flew upward and his body came down to the grass back first.

"In those days a fallen wrestler evidently could call in an onlooker to take his place and calling on a fellow the latter surrendered by 'measuring his length on the grass' which was a declaration that he did not want any part of Abe's game. But he, in turn, called in Abe's best friend, Sampson Traylor. The latter was noted for his wonderful strength and a wrestling match between him and Lincoln had long been sought.

"After a lot of persuasion the match was on, not in the collar and elbow style now, but with their great hands outstretching. They stood braced for a second and suddenly both sprang forward. Their shoulders came together with a thud. It was like two big bison bulls hurling their weight in the first shock of battle. For a breath each bore with all his strength and then closed with his adversary.

Each had an underhold with one arm, the other hooked around his shoulder. Sampson lifted Abe from his feet, but the latter, with tremendous efforts, loosened the hold of the Vermonter, and regained the turf. They struggled across the door yard, the ground trembling beneath their feet. They went against the side of the house shaking it with the force of their impact. Sampson had broken the grip of one of Abe's hands and now had his feet in the air again but the young giant clung to hip and shoulder and wriggled back to his foothold.

Those [illegible] were thrilled and a [illegible] mighty [illegible]. Knowing the strength of the wrestlers they feared [illegible] a fear of broken bones. Each had torn a [illegible] the coat of the other. If they kept on there was danger that both would be stripped. Sarah Traylor [illegible] begged the struggling men to stop and they obeyed her.

"Then the magnanimity of the great Lincoln [illegible] when he declared Sampson the strongest man and declared he was glad to quit him. But Sampson would not accept the palm, declaring that if Abe had been 'rassling' for the right you would have flopped me."

Maybe it was a lucky thing Lincoln was born when he was. If he were alive and a young man, today, who knows but he would have succumbed to a wrestling offer from Paul Bowser, deserted his law, Blackstone and politics and gone after Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg's wrestling crown. Wrestling's gain would have been the country's loss.

Friedman Downs Daniels in Big Ring Upset

By JACK CONWAY

The sport-enders are still casting in for the boys who believe [illegible]

Al Friedman [illegible] when he won the decision over Dick Daniels of Minneapolis in a furious 10 round bout at an Argonne A. A. show [illegible] New [illegible] Arena.

Jack Conway

It looked as though the boys would make the odds hit the right dot when Daniels paraded from his corner in the opening round and smacked Friedman down for a count of eight with a sizzling right hand poke to the jaw.

Mister Friedman, however, is one of those young men who just won't stay down. He bounced right up off the canvas and remained on his feet until the 10 rounds had been completed.

Daniels had a decided lead during the first five rounds while Friedman came with a rush during the last five heats. This writer thought Daniels had the edge, but I waive my personal opinions when a gallant warrior like Friedman upsets the dope.

56th Bout for Friedman in Year

It was Friedman's 56th bout of the year. [illegible] $75,000 [illegible]

[illegible] to sign Daniels and Friedman for a return bout on December [illegible]. You may be certain Friedman won't avoid [illegible]

Daniels weighed 1[illegible] pounds, Friedman 1[illegible].

The Minneapolis warrior did his most effective work with a right-hand smash to the jaw delivered at long range. This was the sock that tipped Friedman over in the opening session.

As the battle wore on, Friedman stepped inside of Daniels' right hand wallops and scored with effective thrusts to the body. Al was also the aggressor for most of the distance.

It was one of the best [illegible] weight bouts ever staged in the Hub. As usually happens in such a case there was only a small crowd on hand. Some 3000 fans paid $3500 to see the mill. The small crowd was due to the holidays and the fact most everybody expected Daniels to win easily.

Cormier Beats Herman in Slashing Bout

Werter Acelli of Italy triumphed over Frank Hershy of Lynn in two rounds. A cut over the right eye made it necessary for Dr. Gwinnell of the boxing commission's staff to order the match stopped.

Terry Mitchell, Somerville, upset Pat Perkins, South Boston, in ten frames.

Al Friedman Pins Kayo on 'Dope'

"I doff my new fall lid to Friedman," said Conway today. "He sure did let his fists fly during the last five rounds. Like a real fighter, he came up off the floor to win."

Boston Boxers In Amateur Tourney

Two Boston boxers, Phil Food and Ralph Morgan, competed in the first night of the international and inter-city boxing tournament at Madison Square Garden.

Morgan was knocked out after one minute and a quarter of the first round by Al Haslam of Long Island City in the semi-final of the 128 pound class.

When Tufts wound up their football season last Saturday by walloping Massachusetts Aggies, 11 men were playing their last game for their Alma Mater. Among these men are some who have been great performers as the Tufts gridiron has ever seen. Six of these eleven have been starting all season.

The first string substitutes who will be missing are Norman Legals, Holland Pittock and Kenneth Mirkawitz, backs; Eddie Giles and Jack Gibbons, guards.

Harvard Hockey Men to Answer Call Today

Harvard's 1930-31 hockey season opens officially today when an army of Crimson puck-chasers meet Coach Joe Stubbs at the Harvard Varsity Club.

Eight letter men constitute the nucleus of Stubbs' varsity squad this season and the Crimson [illegible] coach predicts a brilliant season for the Cantabs. The veterans are Capt. Hardy Ellis, Johnny Garrison, Barry Wood, Sam Batchelder, Charlie Cunningham, [illegible] Crosby, Frank Martin and Bill Everett.

While today's meeting will be the first for the majority of the Cantab icemen, Captain Ellis has stolen a march on the rest and has been working out in the cage at the Boston Garden with the Boston squad.

Actual ice work for Harvard does not begin until Dec. 1. This will enable several Crimson pucksters who have been playing football for Arnie Horween to rest a few days after their gruelling grid season.

Gridmen Will Report to Hockey Squad

Among those who particularly need a short respite from sports are Barry Wood, Sam Batchelder and Charlie Cunningham, all three of whom are expected to land in Stubbs' first string lineup this season.

Among several promising sophomores to report today are Bob Saltonstall, leader of the 1933 sextet a year ago, Johnny Putnam, speedy wingman, Mike Baldwin, diminutive center who caged the tying goal against the Eli cub team last year, Henry Barton and others.

Harvard opens against M. I. T. Dec. 11, and plays a long schedule facing some of the best college teams in the United States and Canada. As a hockey innovation the Crimson sextet will clash with the Buffalo professionals during their Christmas week games.

Two Canadian teams are on the Varsity's ice calendar this year. On Dec. 27 Harvard faces Toronto in Madison Sq. Garden, New York, and after that Harvard meets McGill University in Buffalo.

Boxing Inspector Stricken at Bouts

Philadelphia, Nov. 25 (INS)—Stricken while attending the Benny Bass-Lew Massey boxing bout last night, Daniel R. Dean, 44-year-old New Jersey boxing inspector residing in Camden, died in the Presbyterian hospital here early today.

Dean's condition was not believed serious at first. He collapsed just before the boxing bout started and was revived by Dr. Baron of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission.

Friends started to take him home but when he became worse they took him to the hospital instead. Several hours later he died. A heart ailment was the cause.

LIGHT WORK FOR EAGLE ELEVEN

A scrimmage today, followed by light workouts tomorrow and Thursday, will constitute the program of the Boston College Eagles as they prepare for their annual battle with Holy Cross on Saturday.

Outside of the Harvard-Yale game, this annual meeting of the Maroon and Gold and the Purple is the finest football attraction offered to grid fans in the year.

Coach McKenney is fairly confident that his stalwart line, which withstood the assaults of Georgetown, Marquette, Villanova and Fordham, will stop the Crusaders' running attack.

When the starting lineup for the engagement is announced, it is expected that Johnny Marr, Joe Kelley and Chessy Antos will be the trio of ball carriers to get the nomination.

Who the quarterback will be is not yet decided, but the choice lies between George Colbert and Bill Boehner, with the former having the edge. Boehner has an injured ankle, and with Colbert hitting his stride, it appears as though he will get the call.

The game will witness the return of several of Tiny MacManmon's best linesmen to the game after an absence of weeks. Bill Bennett and Romeo Romanowski, star tackles, will be favored to regain their old positions and Capt. John Dixon will be back at end.

Tomorrow afternoon the Eagles will work out for the last time at University Heights. They will be tendered a banquet in the evening by the entire student body and will then leave for Mansfield Tavern where the 35 players will remain until just before the game with Holy Cross.

HORTON SMITH'S GOLF LESSONS

Famous Young Missouri Professional Illustrates and Describes the Mechanics and Technique of Play

DISCUSSES KNACK OF DRIVING LONG BALL

AT SOME time or other, certainly at the start, everyone who takes up golf wants to drive just as far as possible. The burning ambition to do that, without proper preliminary training in the short shots, has produced many a confirmed duffer and made many an erratic player. You can never drive long balls with any worth-while degree of consistent success unless you are fairly well grounded in the half strokes, the fundamentals of the correct swing, etc., etc. And even when you are qualified to try long balls, you'll probably reach the conclusion that a knack is required to get great length. Many a lightweight golf expert gets considerably greater distance than big, generously muscled stars, apparently with less effort at times. That seeming paradox must be as old as the game itself.

Why in golf's gutta percha ball days, Edward Blackwell, who made an authentic drive of 366 yards, explained:

"It is very hard to say how it is that anyone drives a great length. It must be largely knack." Blackwell's comment of long ago is just as sound today as when he noted: "To drive well, a man must first of all perfect his style and the length may come then or it may not."

Incidentally, old photos of Blackwell's swing indicate that his and mine (note movie exerpt to right) are approximately alike except that his finishes with his right heel well off the ground and his left foot pointing in the direction of his shot. Neither of those details help my long ball efforts so I do not employ them.

That knack of getting your longest ball, I believe, is the ability to get your utmost strength into a correct full swing just at the moment of contact and immediate follow-through. This requires precise timing as well as much power in the rhythmic swing. And that explains, in part at least, why some little fellows can often get better distance than most of the physical giants of the links. Their punch is timed better.

A. A. Fund Shortage Worries Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., Nov. 25 (INS)—A $70,000 athletic fund shortage due to decreased football receipts this season, was the main concern of the University of Wisconsin athletic council, not the status of Coach Glenn Thistlewaite, it was announced today.

It was reported that Wisconsin's 14 to 0 victory over Minnesota Saturday appeased the principal critics of Thistlewaite's regime, although it was reported that he was to be replaced.

Mat Experts Pick Sherry to Defeat Sonnenberg

KING IS DUE TO LOSE TITLE

By MR. BOSTON

Of course, you got a thrill if you were in the Yale Bowl when Barry Wood was tossing those long forward passes to Art Huguley. The radio account of the game and the newspaper dispatches also got under the skin of everybody who likes to hear about the unexpected happening in sport.

If you will promise not to broadcast it to the world I'll tip you where you will receive even a greater thrill than the Wood to Huguley affair.

Did I hear you say you would promise to keep your tongue between your teeth?

Okay then, buddy. I'll slip you the information. If you just must tell somebody, pass the news along to friend wife, the girl friend or the fellow with whom you knock around the old home town.

Here's the big idea. The big grapplers tell me in confidence (that's why I'm telling only you) that Jack Sherry is going to win the world's heavyweight wrestling championship when he clashes with Gus Sonnenberg in their finish mat bout at the New Boston Arena on Thanksgiving night.

Stasiak Says Sherry Will Wear Mat Crown

Stanley Stasiak, who knows his wrestling, pulled me into a corner the other afternoon at Toland's Gym.

Stanley looked north, south, east and west to make sure no enemy ears were cocked. Then he opened up.

"I think Sherry will lick Sonny Thursday night," said Stanley. "Sherry knows too much about the fine points of the game for the champ. And then Sonny is tired. He's been wrestling too much. The train rides he has taken would be enough to wreck him, but he has to wrestle in addition. I figure Gus has reached the end of the long trail. I'm handing this information to you as a sort of Christmas present."

Joe Alvarez, a very good wrestler himself a few years back and now Paul Bowser's box office man, jammed me into a corner and started whispering in my right ear.

"I'm picking Sherry to lick Sonny."

I looked Joe right in the eye. Sure, it was Joe who first called my attention to Sonnenberg when the latter was roaring through the small towns on his way to the championship.

I have had the dope sheets in front of me ever since. I can visualize Sherry knocking the everlasting daylight out of Sonnenberg in their last match.

Many Fans Feel Sherry Robbed of Title

I can close my eyes and picture Sonnenberg, badly beaten, clinging onto the ropes with Sherry on the outside of him, trying to pry Gus loose. Then Referee Leon Burbank stepped into the picture, broke Sonny's hold and went crashing to the canvas with the wrestlers. I can see Burbank getting Sherry tangled up and then awarding the winning fall to Sonnenberg.

I was raving against the referee as I left the Arena. So were a lot of other folks. Like myself, they felt Sherry had been robbed of the title.

I don't like the word robbed. It reminds me of Jesse James and other wild characters.

But I cannot get away from the fact Sherry would have been champion of the world today if he had received fair treatment from the referee.

He gets another chance Thanksgiving Night. If he comes through with a victory, I can picture Stanley Stasiak, Joe Alvarez and the rest of the boys who have been pulling me into corners and handing me inside dope, saying "Well, didn't I tell you so."

I'll be at the ringside Thursday night to see what happens.

Giant Italian Will Clash With Yusko

I am also interested in the supporting card. Rosario Impellitier, giant Italian heavyweight, will clash with Frank Yusko of Arlington in the semi-final.

In other matches, Count Zarynoff, one of the most colorful of mat stars, will oppose Jack Ganson. Stanley Stasiak (how I love to hear the old Lion roar) will battle Jack Rushell of Canada. Freddy Meyers, former Olympic star, will clash with Les Wykoff of St. Louis, while Al Baffert of Montreal will take on Charley Marshall of Chicopee Falls.

Paul Bowser is donating 50 per cent of his profit of this show to the Boston Evening American's Christmas Fund which is another very large reason why you won't want to miss this brilliant wrestling attraction.

Tufts Court Star Out Until Mid-Year

Charles Haber, Tufts' varsity basketball player, will not play until mid-year as he feels that he must spend his time on his studies. Haber was a star forward on last year's team, and he was the second high point scorer.

Yale Alumni Lack Fight Spirit of Old-Timers

By DAMON RUNYON

New York, Nov 25. Much indignation prevails among the old grads of Yale because of the failure of the young men now infesting that noble institution of l'arnin' to properly defend their goal posts against the depredations of the Harvards last Saturday.

"Why, my goodness, gracious me," one antique Yaler remarked, "they scarcely raised a fist to save their posts. It was a disgraceful spectacle to see them remaining in their seats while those Harvards were tearing Yale's poles limb from tree. Dear, dear, dear! What is the world coming to when a Yale feller can sit supinely by and watch the Harvard boys make toothpicks out of their posts."

Damon Runyon

"It must be due to prohibition," another vintage Yaler asserted. "Everything is due to prohibition, or unemployment. I was so mortified by the lack of spirit of our boys that I removed the blue feather from my hat in a pique. If I hadn't remembered my lumbago just in time I would have sallied forth myself in defense of our sacred pillars. Why, in 1910 I personally flattened nine Harvard blighters who were only casting speculative eyes at our posts."

"What you gents say is very true," a third pre-war Yale chappy chimed in, "but I claim that what our college needs now, far more than a strong defense of our goal posts, is a fair defense against the forward pass. That would be something quite useful, indeed."

However, I had some of my most trustworthy stool pigeons working on the case over Sunday to see if any other reason existed, because I have seen even punchy Yales emerge from the coma produced by other Harvard triumphs in time to spill Harvard accents all over the yard before permitting the Harvards to lay dukes on the Yale posts.

Bobby Jones Now Plays Golf Only on Saturdays

Atlanta, Nov. 25 (AP). There's a standing golf date for four Atlanta business men early every Saturday afternoon at the East Lake Country Club here.

One of the quartet is a short, chunky, 28-year-old player, sometimes called the greatest golfer the world ever has known. The others are his father and two close friends.

Business worries end at Saturday noon for the junior and senior members of the law firm of Jones, Evins, Powers, and Jones, and 1:30 generally finds the foursome ready to drive off the first tee.

Occasionally Bobby Jones finds time for a round during the week, but every Saturday he plays with his father, Robert P. Jones, Chick Ridley and "Tess" Bradshaw. Ridley sells automobiles and Bradshaw insurance. Both have known Bobby since childhood.

Gets a Big Kick Out of It

Let Bobby play on any other course and you'll find a gallery following him, but at East Lake he's just another member.

Everyone has a friendly greeting for Bob, but it is seldom that the others trail him. Bobby admitted he is enjoying golf more than he has for years. He loves the game, and with tournament play a thing of the past Bobby can drive, chip and putt without worrying about his shots. He's reverting to the Jones of a decade ago, unburned by crowns.

And occasionally—when there are no onlookers—the other members of the foursome see a rare sight. Bobby actually throws down a club when Calamity Jane, the putter, or his midiron behaves badly.

In addition to his law work Bobby is a director of the First National Bank, vice-president of the Atlanta Baseball Club of the Southern Association and local counsel for one of the South's leading railways. These positions keep him busy most of the week, and every day he has to regretfully decline invitations to attend gatherings here and in other Georgia cities.

"I'd like to go to all of them, but I've wasted too much time already. I've got to get down to business," Bobby says.

Sonnenberg Wins in Straight Falls

Pittsfield, Nov. 25—Gus Sonnenberg defeated Sailor Arnold of Cleveland, O., in two straight falls in the main wrestling bout here and did not have to use his flying tackle.

Illini Pick Yanuskus

Champaign, Ill., Nov. 25 (INS). Peter J. Yanuskus of Kewanee, Ill. has been elected captain of the 1931 University of Illinois football team. Yanuskus, a halfback for the past two years, gained recognition by a 50-yard run against Army in 1929.

PERES TO PLAY STEAMROLLERS

The Steamrollers have an aggregation that is studded with stars and their appearance at the Tepee will draw many thousands of fans.

"Frosty" Peters, who was scheduled to fill Red Grange's shoes when Red left Illinois, is quarterbacking the Steamrollers. "Frosty" didn't quite become another Grange, but was noted for being one of the best passers and drop kickers that college football has yet produced.

A local favorite with the Steamrollers will be Warren McGuirk, all Eastern tackle and captain of Boston College's championship eleven of 1928.

Does a Girl Ever Have to Learn to Love?

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope. Otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

Miss Fairfax broadcasts over Station WLEX every evening except Saturday and Sunday at 6.35 p. m.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Does a person have to learn to love in some cases? I have gone with a young man for nearly two years. He loves me dearly and I hate to hurt him but I do not know for sure whether I love him or not. I like him as a friend because he has proven himself a worthy one, but whether that is all he means to me I cannot say.

Beatrice Fairfax

Do you think that I should continue this friendship and that my love for him will gradually grow. I feel terribly because I have hurt him so. He doesn't seem to want to give me up at all if there is the slightest hope. I have been true to him during this time. Please advise me what to do. I am 20.

UNCERTAIN.

Dear Uncertain: Sometimes absence is the only test to prove the depth of one's affection. You and your friend might agree not to see each other for a given time, and [illegible] that affects your regard for him. In the meantime, you might try to cultivate some new friends and see if they interest you. If you do not miss your old admirer, it would be unwise to consider marrying him.

Loves Him as a Brother

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I must ask advice from someone, and I think you are the one to help me. I am a young woman of 30. I am fond of my home, which is very lovely, and make a good mother to my two sons. I keep myself looking young and am a good manager, if I do say so myself, but the point is my husband. He is just wonderful to me and we get along just fine. I do all I can to make him a good wife, but I cannot respond to his love-making. For him I have only a sister's love. But I get a thrill out of just speaking to some men I know—I think my heart will jump out of my mouth sometimes. I would not meet anyone out, because I am still old-fashioned enough to stick to my marriage vows. I even pray that I should feel toward my husband as a wife should, but it does no good.

S. T.

Dear S. T.: When one reaches the age of thirty she must realize that, to the noraml wife and mother—particularly one with a conscience—life has far more of routine, obligation, responsibility than thrills. Some women, and they are much older than thirty, pursue thrills at the expense of everything else—home, husband, children. Things they promised in their marriage vows to stand for. It's a question what these thrill-chasers get out of life compared with the women who still adhere to the homelier virtues. I believe, from the text of your letter, which is too long to print, that you are the type that in the long run will get more out of having done your duty and living up to your obligations as a wife and mother than yielding to those often misleading thrills which come when you are with other men.

Nothing but Tragedy

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am sorely troubled as to the future. I am in love with a young man at least 20 years my junior. I see him three or four times a week, but on account of extreme difference in age doubt his love for me. Oh! Miss Fairfax, does he really love me? Though he takes me many places, if I wish to go where I am well known he does not care to accompany me. And seemingly at times he jeers at my remarks and actions. I am well capable of standing on my own two feet, so I am no longer in the prime of life. Would you advise me to let him continue his courtship or give him his walking ticket?

PERPLEXED.

Dear Perplexed: No man can love a woman 20 years his senior in the way a man should love the woman he marries. Harsh as the truth may be, you will regret it to your dying day if you marry this boy, for no matter what our respective ages, he is nothing but a boy to you and always will be. Whatever the attraction has been so far, break it off and thank your stars you had the common sense to do so. Nothing but tragedy could result from such a union.

Winning War Against T. B.

Sunshine and Fresh Air Weapons

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

SCIENCE is adding daily to our knowledge of the body and its true functions. Discoveries are being made at such a rate that it is difficult to keep up with them.

One of the most cheering examples of the advance in medical science is the successful war being waged on tuberculosis in all its forms.

Not so many years ago tuberculosis was looked upon as incurable. Now we know that it is really curable. We have learned that right living is the telling factor in its cure. In consequence, the death rate from this disease is steadily decreasing in most localities in our country. Unfortunately, in the congested sections of our great cities it still presents a serious problem.

The subject of nutrition is being vigorously investigated in relation to diseases. In no human ailment is proper nutrition a more important factor than in the control of tuberculosis.

This disease may attack any of the organs, or any part of the body. The intestines form a convenient place for the tubercular germ to find a lodging place. It is rare for the disease to spend its force in the intestines. Yet if the membrane lining of this passageway becomes involved, say from infected milk, or some other agent, then there will be numerous local symptoms.

The most common symptom of this form of tuberculosis is diarrhoea. For this reason, treatment is difficult, because feeding the patient in tuberculosis of any kind is a matter of paramount importance. The resistance to disease must be built up as quickly as possible. If the digestive tract is out of order, forced feeding is most difficult.

When a person is emaciated, lacks strength, has great prostration and fever, he must be put to bed and remain there until his doctor permits him to get up. Absolute rest and quiet are essential in the beginning.

There is no medicine in the world like fresh air and sunshine. In tuberculosis the patient must have fresh air day and night. It is a vital thing in tubercular infection, and nothing must stand in the way of getting it. We are not doing our duty by the sufferer unless we keep this constantly in mind.

Except in certain rare forms, sunlight is one of the most powerful in this disease. Either natural or artificial sunlight may be used. If the latter, it should always be used under the guidance of a physician.

To sum up the treatment in tuberculosis of the intestines, or other forms of the disease, the essential factors in the cure are hygenic surroundings, fresh air and sunshine. To these we add plenty of rest and sleep, a diet in which milk and eggs are the foundation, and freedom from worry and mental disturbance. With all these, there is every chance of recovery.

Thanksgiving Dinner Dresses

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

It's a big holiday which gives it a formal sound. But—on the other hand—it's a home day—which has a nice informal sound.

So it's a combination of both formality and informality that's right for the Thanksgiving dinner. And many and lovely are the season's dresses that combine these two moods happily.

For the about mid-day dinner, an informal afternoon type of dress is a fortunate choice. The sort of dress that can do for the rest of the afternoon and be ready to greet any casual callers.

Such dresses are [illegible] worn at the middle calf just as general daytime dresses are worn. But their details are a bit more intricate. They have the "dressier" look without looking too formal for the hour and the family table.

You know the kind. Long sleeves, of course, but maybe a bit of lace on them or some interesting arrangement of pleats or a different sort of girdle that makes it look distinguished.

Two Informal Dresses

Two dresses that illustrate exactly what we mean are shown above at the left. One is a peplum dress—the soft Grecian peplum finished off with fan pleats that are repeated in the skirt. The crossed bands are Grecian, too, and though they're just a small detail [illegible] they 'dress up' this dress.

The other is a trim peplum dress with a lace collar and lace trimmed sleeves. Just [illegible] lace to make it dressy and not enough to make it formal.

More Formal Dresses

If dinner's in the late afternoon, five or six o'clock, [illegible] a chance [illegible] wear one of the charming more formal afternoon dresses. And they're a little longer than the dresses just described—lower calf. Because a late afternoon affair—even a home dinner—verges on the beginning of the formal hours.

As the skirts of these dresses grow longer the sleeves grow shorter—sometimes very short. Sometimes disappearing altogether and a cape effect substituted to cover the top of the arm.

One's in the two-color combination that's so much in fashion. The other is lace trimmed (and [illegible] velvet) and though very simple in line is rather formal in effect.

And of course these dresses are just as suitable for the afternoon tea or bridge as for the Thanksgiving dinner.

Matter of Washing Dishes

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When one is having friends for dinner, and has no help, what should be done about the dishes? Should the hostess wash the dishes while the guests are still there, or should she just close the dining room, making some excuse, and wait until the guests have departed? Should a guest ever say anything like this? 'Let us wash the dishes so I can help you' on any similar saying?

GRACE.

It is much better form, and more comfortable for all concerned, for the hostess to be most casual about the dishes—indeed, to give the impression that there just isn't such a thing as dishwashing. A guest, if she sees that the servantless hostess is going to be agitated about washing the dishes, naturally [illegible] offers to help the hostess in washing the dishes. But if the hostess is as casual as I urge her to be, and hope that she will be, the guest takes her cue from this 'careful careless' attitude of the hostess and doesn't insist.

A Continuous Smile

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have the habit of smiling continually, and when I am at a party or dance men think I am flirting with them. Would you advise me to hide my smile?

V. A. B.

Your expression I should think would seem somewhat like an [illegible] advertisement. Why persist in such continuous smiling? Life, you know, is more interesting if it is composed more of light and shade. The [illegible] with the smile may win, but it gets terribly monotonous if it smiles continuously.

I'd be an ogress if I advised you to "hide your smile," but never would I advise you to "smile continuously." And for more reasons than that men might think that you were trying to flirt with them.

The Debutante's Corsage

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to a "Prom" and probably my escort will bring me a corsage. Please inform me as to what I shall say in regard to the acceptance of it? On which side shall I wear it? When dancing, is it not inconvenient, and if it is, what shall I do with it when I dance?

AN ADMIRER.

Thank your beau as you would for any other delightful courtesy that he shows you! "Thank you so much for these lovely flowers. How kind you were to think of bringing them to me." or "You were most kind to bring me these beautiful orchids. Thank you so much."

Wear them wherever they are becoming. It depends on the style of frock. While you are dancing you may, if you wish, leave them on the table or on your chair if there is no table.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Thanksgiving the Day for Many 'Goodies'

By MARTHA LEE
Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Homemakers' Club of Over 37,000.

WHAT IS nicer on Thanksgiving than to be thankful for crunchy, smooth, or chewy goodies, which someone in the home has made in abundance with always the thought of the Thanksgiving spirit in mind! Especially delicious are caramels. They are easy to make, and unlike other home made sweets in the candy line, you can wrap each [illegible] own separate paper [illegible] keep it from sticking with brotherly closeness to the next piece, which is often a habit of home made confections.

Martha Lee

Marshmallow, cocoanut, fruits such as dates and figs, and popcorn all contribute to the making of the Thanksgiving [illegible] menu. Popcorn is especially good, as this fluffy substance [illegible] the candy much lighter and bought in canned form, is always reliable.

CHOCOLATE MARSHMALLOW CANDIES

[illegible] cup corn syrup, one cup evaporated milk, one-half cup cream, two tbsp. butter and boil to 238 deg. (soft ball). Add two squares of melted chocolate and resume cooking to the firm ball stage (246 deg. if you use a candy thermometer). Add two tsp. of vanilla. Cut 12 marshmallows in quarters. Put a layer of caramel in a buttered pan, then a layer of marshmallows, more caramel, etc., having a caramel on top. Cool. Turn whole slab out on a board, cut, and wrap. This recipe makes 1½ pounds of candy.

COCOANUT CARAMELS

Combine one cup of sugar, three-fourths cup white corn syrup, one cup evaporated milk, one-half cup [illegible], two tbsp. butter and boil to the firm ball stage, 246 deg. Add two tsp. raspberry flavor and one cup of moist cocoanut and pour into a greased pan. Cool. Turn [illegible] and wrap. Makes 1½ pounds.

MAPLE PECAN POPCORN BALLS

Pop ½ of a 10-ounce can of popcorn (having 2 quarts of popped corn) and toss together with 1 cup chopped pecans. Boil 1 cup of canned light corn syrup and ½ cup maple sugar to 250 deg., or a medium hard ball. Add 1 tbsp. butter, ¼ tsp. salt and pour over the corn and nuts. Make into quite small balls. Makes about 24.

CHOCOLATE COCOANUT POPCORN BALLS

Pop the contents of a 10-ounce can of popcorn (about 3 quarts when popped) and mix lightly with 1 1-3 cups of canned cocoanut. Mix 1½ cups of sugar, 2-3 cup canned corn syrup, 2-3 cup of water and boil to 240 deg., or a soft ball. Add 3 squares of chocolate and three tbsp. butter melted together in a double boiler and continue boiling to 250 deg. of a medium hard ball. Add 1 tsp. of vanilla and pour over [illegible]. Mix very lightly into small or medium balls. Makes about 26.

Popped corn with sweet chocolate melted and poured over so that clusters stick together is another delightful confection for the children.

Faithfully,

Martha Lee

HONORABLE MENTION

Teacher to Bright Student—What do people mean when they say they are saving their money for a rainy day?

ORA PHILBRICK,
17 Sanborn St., Laconia, N. H.

Newton—That is a dog.

BROKEN RAINBOWS ⁂ By May Christy

the cluttered room, her thoughts winging from dad and mother and their marriage . . . (how that outburst of poor Gracie's the other evening had embarrassed her! . . . it was like tearing the veil from something that ought to be kept sacred, and yet she couldn't blame her mother . . . no! . . . the pent-up years of repression had been too much for her) her thoughts winged uncontrollably to a wonderful "someone" who was the direct antithesis of poor dad—a generous, young, upstanding, vital someone—oh! there weren't enough adjectives to describe this Logan Townsend!

On their last meeting he had asked her—casually—when she planned to take her summer vacation? And her heart had leapt when he had said tentatively—that a few congenial friends were getting together and going into camp for a week or two up at Lake George, or Saranac, and he'd half promised to go along too, and wouldn't it be pleasant if she could fit her arrangements in and join them?

There was nothing in the world that Wilda would love better! But she had crushed back the little cry of pleasure, afraid that he would see too soon . . . that he might think her [illegible]."

"It sounds attractive," she had said, rather primly. And then something or other had diverted the conversation, and he hadn't referred to the plan again.

Maybe he would, tonight. She would contrive an opportunity.

Mercy! It was twenty minutes of seven—right away she must get supper ready.

She flung off her wet raincoat, washed hastily, flew down to the kitchen, set on a pot or two, started peeling potatoes.

Had No Resentment

Where on earth was Gracie?

But it was typical of Wilda that no touch of resentment tinged her though of the absent one who was probably out amusing herself.

She was. The old grandfather clock in the livingroom was striking seven when in came Wilda's mother, looking unnaturally young and vivid even if she was wearing the unbecoming black. Tonight there seemed a sort of glow about her. A couple of white gardenias were pinned in the lapel of her coat. Her cheeks were flushed. Eyes shining.

"Oh Wilda, I'm sorry. But it was such a heavenly movie I couldn't tear myself away—in fact, I didn't even notice the time until the fade-out—"

"But you must be wet!" Solicitously Wilda touched the sombre suit.

"A taxi?"

"Don't look so dumbfounded. I guess we can go right on taking taxis, Wilda, all our lives! Listen! I've great news for you! I tried to reach you at the store by 'phone around 3.30, but they couldn't locate you. I wanted you to come right out and join me."

Get $100,000

Gracie Tells Wilda.

"Why, Gracie, what do you mean? How could I walk out on them in the middle of a busy afternoon? What's taken you?"

"Listen, Wilda, and for pity's sake leave the pots and pans alone a minute, while I tell you!" Gracie's eyes were like stars, and her lips that were oddly red tonight were shaking with excitement. "The lawyers called up this afternoon and asked me to go over. It seems they've cleared everything up about the estate—that's what they called it, and—and whatever do you think we get? You can't imagine—"

Wilda had never seen her mother with such brilliant cheeks and eyes so shiny. She was almost like a stranger. The excitement was infectious, too. She asked breathlessly—

"What? Go on. You tell me."

Said Grace, sonorously: "We get $100,000—" slowly, just as though she loved the sound of the words.

"A hundred thousand dollars? Gee!" Waves of astonishment—nay, incredulity—swept across Wilda's face. "Mother, how did it come? You're sure? The lawyers weren't—kidding?"

"Kidding my foot! They were sweet as honey, smooth as butter, take it from me! Something to do with shares in copper that have gone 'way up—I instructed them to sell out immediately."

"Don't you think I look different already, Wilda? It's money that does that—I've had a face massage this afternoon that cost all of five dollars, and a manicure, and bought me these flowers that smell so lovely but always seemed so wickedly extravagant, and for once in my life I took the highest price seat at the movies. Gee, Wilda, smile, won't you, girl? Can't you see what this means to us both?—that the dream has come true and we're both right on the threshold of everything?"

"Why, I—" Wilda shook out a nervous little laugh. "Your news has taken my breath away, mother."

"I'll say it has. A hundred thousand dollars listens good, doesn't it, eh, Wilda?" A complacent smile that was almost a smirk slid over the features of the elder. She loosened her coat, removed the gardenias from the lapel, and with a long intake of breath she smelled them deliberately. "Gee, but they're sweet! They seem like a—like a sort of an emblem to me, Wilda."

Had Sickly Scent

Reminded of Funeral

The exotic fragrance of the flowers rose even above ordinary odors. But to Wilda's mind they had a sickly scent . . . inaptly reminiscent of lilies at her father's funeral.

Mechanically she lifted the lid of a pot and with the other hand pushed back the hair from her moist forehead. Difficult to take [illegible] news . . . this queer turn of fortune!

What would Logan Townsend feel—and say—when he heard it? Not that it need make any difference between them. Things could surely go along as they were. Only she—Wilda—would have a chance now at a new summer outfit, and the right clothes for that camp . . . she could afford the two weeks at the camp now, couldn't she?

And maybe Schentzel's would give her an extension of vacation without pay, of course) so that after the camp she could take her mother to Asbury Park for a change . . . a spot that Gracie was always hankering after.

There would be books, too, she could buy so that her mind could keep pace with Logan's. He would advise her on the newest, and the reading of them would be a further link between them.

Another exciting installment tomorrow. Don't fail to read it.

The Beauty Box ⁂ By HELEN FOLLETT

CHAPPED SKIN is due to atmospheric dust, ravages of cold wind, not drying the skin surface after washing, or to some passing dermatitis that has set itself up in business. Housekeepers who have water-containers hanging from radiators in the winter time suffer less from painful epidermis than those women who don't bother about having moisture in the home. Jelly-like hand lotions are inexpensive and effective.

When it is necessary to press blackheads from the skin, sterilize the surface with rubbing alcohol, and wrap some soft fabric around the fingers. Severe pressure breaks the delicate cells. The result may be scars that can never be removed. A comedone extractor is convenient.

Why Sentiment in High Places Is Brightening

Roll Call of Encouraging Happenings in and Out of Wall St.

By B. C. FORBES

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—Laughs being scarce these days, perhaps you will enjoy this one received from a Southern reader:

"Some of our leaders, it seems to me, have been somewhat like a negro leader here during a run on the banks. The negroes got the idea that even the Post Office was not a safe place for their savings and they lined up at the window to draw their funds. This negro leader began explaining to them that the Post Office was perfectly safe and urged them to leave their money alone. However, they did not pay any attention to his appeal, so he also fell in line and withdrew his money."

B. C. Forbes

Latest developments suggest that many are getting over that mental condition and that they are now beginning to recover a little faith.

For example, wheat, corn, oats and rye all closed the week with some gain, and so did the New York stock market.

The most significant improvement has been sentimental rather than statistical. Among the most [illegible] considerations now worth [illegible]:

Revolutions have [illegible] throughout Latin America. China is regarded as nearing the end of her civil war. India is not expected to get worse, and alarm over possible large scale dumping by Russia has vanished because of fuller information concerning the desperate conditions existing among the Russian people.

Investment buying of stocks has been quietly but impressively increasing during recent weeks. After advancing five consecutive days, average quotations dipped last Monday, but resumed their upward course and more than held their own daily until Saturday, when there was a slight reaction. It is now felt that, unless powerful bears concertedly launch further terrific attacks and succeed in bringing lower prices than any yet witnessed, the market's course will be at least moderately upwards. In addition to widespread odd-lot purchasing, choice securities are now being accumulated by very wealthy individuals and institutions.

The continuance of extraordinarily cheap money is counted upon to have the influence it normally has. That is to say, enterprise will be stimulated in many directions, including home building.

The betterment in the textile industry is interpreted as [illegible] pointing to early [illegible] general conditions.

The demonstrated ability of [illegible] copper producers [illegible] materially above [illegible] minimum has not lost its effect upon sentiment notwithstanding that the [illegible] 12 cents has [illegible]. The check [illegible] dency in [illegible] with reports [illegible] facturers [illegible] cept unlimited business for distant delivery at [illegible] had a beneficial [illegible] quarters. The [illegible] now being taken [illegible] at substantially [illegible] prices than those ruling [illegible] ago are followed with [illegible] ness. Even [illegible] seems to be making [illegible] progress in modifying [illegible] there has been [illegible] price-cutting.

Renewed efforts to pave the way for Eastern railway consolidations are under way, with the cordial approval of President Hoover and notwithstanding all the differences still to be composed. High Finance does not regard a settlement as wholly impossible. The pronounced rise in railway stocks reflects this and the under[illegible] Washington is now [illegible] that the railroads of the [illegible] considerates.

The arresting of [illegible] consumption of [illegible] the Eastern States [illegible] higher recovery traditionally first sets in, is accepted as an encouraging [illegible] even though the recovery has not yet gone far enough to warrant very definite deductions.

In high places the talk of a possible request for a moratorium on part of its debt payments by Germany is causing little concern. That sweeping adjustment of international war debts will come one day is not questioned. But such readjustments are not looked for in the immediate future.

No claim is made that November has changed the whole complexion of things in this country. It is still easier to find weak spots than strong spots—much.

But at least developments have not been wholly one-sided. And, as already told, gloom is lifting a little as we near the approach of Recovery Year.

STOCKS GOOD SECURITY FOR BANK LOANS

By FRANK H. MELOON

Commenting on the decline in brokers' loans, a Wall Street writer says:

"It is true that this decline in brokers' loans is not as large as appears on the surface because margin traders in the stock market have switched their accounts from stock brokers to banks.

"This statement loses importance when one considers the fact that stocks are very good security for bank loans at all levels of market because they are [illegible] convertible [illegible] to [illegible]. The [illegible] margin maintained between the loan value and the stock market value of a security is in every sense a margin of safety for the bank."

Gillette Holders' Meeting Adjourned

Special meeting of stockholders of Gillette Safety Razor Co., adjourned from a week ago, was called to order this morning and immediately adjourned. The meeting had been held over one week in order to pass any confirmatory votes that might be necessary in connection with the merger with Auto Strop Safety Razor Co. but no such votes were needed.

Gillette Dividend of Dollar Ordered

Directors of the Gillette Safety Razor Company today declared a dividend on the common stock for the last quarter of 1930 of $1 payable January 1 to stock of record December 8. Previous rate on the stock was $5 annually.

Prices Are Firm in Bond Dealings

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Bonds displayed no marked trend today but appeared somewhat firmer. The volume of business improved. Small fractional advances among some prime corporation bonds were matched by recessions elsewhere.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

The entire stock market this week has virtually [illegible] the [illegible] of [illegible] shares Montgomery Ward and Sears Roebuck [illegible] which advanced to new [illegible] in the present recovery.

Buying of these stocks was particularly aggressive in [illegible] further evidence that conditions affecting the companies have materially improved. For one thing it was stated that price cutting between the two leading units in the mail order business has been eliminated.

Old Interests in Montgomery Again

Montgomery Ward was heavily [illegible] by banking interests [illegible] the stock when [illegible] interests [illegible] only are satisfied that the company again is on a profitable basis and that, given a fair volume of sales next year a remarkable improvement in earnings [illegible] possible.

Sears-Roebuck Shares Demand

Sears-Roebuck shares in the [illegible] demand for mail order [illegible] with a good deal of the buying traceable to the same Chicago interest who made the greatest speculative activity in Montgomery Ward in the latter stages of the great rise.

Cutten's Hand Is Seen in Market

The hand of Cutten, Chicago's best known large scale investor and speculator, was reported detected in several stocks with which he formerly was identified. Westinghouse Electric, which was one of his prime favorites in the bull market, continued significantly firm. There has been persistent buying of this issue of late and while a good part of it was traced to covering by shorts, there has been a much higher grade of buying.

Baldwin Control Reported Changed

Baldwin Locomotive, in which Cutten became sufficiently interested to take his place on the directorate, has enjoyed a burst of strength. Baldwin's control is understood to have passed back into the hands of powerful banking interests who dominated its affairs until semi-speculators bought sufficient stock in the open market to give them control.

Bull Leaders Are Seen Returning

"It is return to active market participation by some of the formerly most aggressive bull leaders that marks another encouraging phase of the current stabilizing effort. Other bull leaders, out of market for months, likewise are beginning to renew their interest in the market," says a Wall Street writer today.

Great Western's Prospects Improved

Strength in Chicago Great Western preferred at times recently has reflected the good operating showing made by that carrier thus far in 1930. It is the only road in its territory to show a gain in net operating income over last year.

Great Western and the Soo Line are the two roads which are likely to benefit from the revision in grain rates which are scheduled to go into effect Jan. 1. Directors of Great Western declared a dividend of $1 on the preferred recently, the first to be paid on the issue since 1919.

Farm Implement Shares Neglected

Farm implement stocks have been more or less neglected in the market recently. That is due to the view in many quarters that such companies will have considerable difficulty in 1931 equalling the results to be shown for the current year. Generally, that opinion is based on the situation which has existed in the agricultural districts of the country. However there has been a moderate amount of long-pulled buying for a few of the leaders in that group by interests who are inclined to look far into the future and believe that improvement must come eventually for the farmer as well as the manufacturer of farm machinery.

Briggs Dividend Is Looked For

Interests that have been active [illegible] on several occasions recently are eyeing the prospect for a resumption of dividends on the stock. The company made a comparatively favorable showing this year and any increase in the Ford activities would be beneficial. For the first nine months of 1930 $2.26 a share was reported. No payments have been made on the stock since 1927 when the rate was $3 a share.

Chesebrough Drop Found Unjustified

Important houses which have been identified with Standard Oil stocks generally insist that the decline of approximately 50 per cent in the market value of Chesebrough has been unwarranted. They point out that while earnings for the current year may show a recession from those of preceding periods, because of business conditions, the effect has been comparatively negligible. In some quarters it is the belief that forced liquidation was responsible for part of the decline, as it is said that no change has taken place in the company's affairs to justify the heavy selling.

Union Carbide's Earnings Prospect

Despite arguments heard in the financial district recently to the effect that Union Carbide is selling at a high figure in relation to earnings and yields less than many other stocks, it is known that holdings of important interests have been maintained. It is contended that the outlook for increased earnings over a period of years is favorable. Its strong financial position and the wide diversification of its products have been pointed out as favorable factors.

Pool Activity in Remington-Rand

A courageous pool is responsible for the current activity and strength in Remington-Rand. The stock's sponsors are emphasizing the company's strong current cash position.

Kroger Grocery Making Progress

Basis for the persistent buying of Kroger Grocery was disclosed in a directors' statement of favorable earnings prospects for 1931. The stock has been persistently accumulated by a leading investment trust.

Int. Nickel Support Point

Large-scale demand is reported for International Nickel between current price and its low for the year. The buyer are aware that continuance of current conditions may necessitate lowering of the dividend, but nevertheless view the long term prospects as highly favorable.

Shattuck Continues in Steady Demand

Shattuck achieved a two-point demand as buying continued for investment interests attracted by the company's record of persistent growth in profits.

Profit-Taking in Baltimore & Ohio

Two-point reaction in Baltimore & Ohio represented chiefly profit taking by individuals who bought the stock around its recent low. Any further setback probably will encounter renewed buying by investment interests.

Miniature Bar Show Feature

When the Twenty-sixth Annual New York Automobile Salon opens Nov. 30 visitors will find unusual features. One car will have a cellarette, or miniature bar, concealed behind cabinet doors. Another provides a recessed vanity at the side illuminated by a tiny lamp, and giving all the conveniences of a boudoir table. Another has a secret compartment in which to hide jewels and for that timid motorist or back seat driver a dashing sport design is equipped with an instrument panel on the back of the rear seat with speedometer, clock, altimeter and complete radio set. Adjustable back seats, sheepskin rugs colored to match the upholstery and many other novelties and comforts will be displayed.

Automobile stocks are usually bought freely in advance of the show, which commonly sees auto shares advancing.

"Dead" Stocks Being Revived

Many old traders say that for the first time in months a large number of so-called "dead" stocks have been coming to life with substantial gains. That refers in particular to stocks selling between $15 and $50, some of which were in either blue chip or red chip class last year. All of which is regarded as a good sign.

Market's Action Helping Business

The president of a large steel company says the better action of the market is having a good influence on business. "Orders," he says, "have shown an appreciable increase the past two weeks. Most of our customers hold securities, and how they feel is based largely on action of what they hold. If you don't believe it, try to sell something to a customer when the market is making new lows."

Short Interest in Market Big

Resistance to bear pressure has induced considerable covering, but a large short interest still exists. Borrowing demand for stocks still is brisk. One reason is that many speculators have had no confidence in the rally. Up to two weeks or so ago, selling short on rallies had become a habit and it was a profitable habit while it lasted, for the rallies failed to hold. A large short interest still exists in such stocks as General Electric, Westinghouse, Steel, General Motors, Can and many oil and copper stocks. Up to a week or so ago some brokers said the rails were nursing the largest short interest in a long time, but on the recent rise considerable covering took place.

Tax Sellers Get Chance to Rebuy

Some say the big interests, that is many of them, got a jump ahead of the general public in tax-selling by disposing of stocks in September and October.

The peak of the rise then was on Sept. 10, and from then to Nov. 10 the Dow-Jones industrial averages were off 73.49 points and rails 29.79 points.

The slump has given tax sellers a rare opportunity to buy back. Even today those who sold stocks in September and the greater part of October can buy back at prices far below the levels at which they sold.

Government Buying for a Long Pull

At least the Farm Board will have to do no tax selling.

HIGHER STEEL PRICES SEEN BY KULAS

Cleveland, O., Nov. 25 (AP)—Increase in prices of steel products has simply got to come, E. J. Kulas, president of the Otis Steel Company and Midland Steel Products Company, Inc., of Cleveland, said today.

He said he could not predict how soon increases would be put into effect or how great they would be. The Kulas statement followed published reports steel interests shortly would announce moderate increases as a way to revival of business in general.

"Steel companies are not making money," he said. "Last year in the boom period they earned around [illegible] per cent of their capital investment.

"We have agreed not to cut wages and the prices of ore, limestone and other things that go into the manufacture of steel as well as taxes are not coming down, so the only thing we can do is to raise prices."

He said many steel products have been sold at prices more than 20 per cent under those of 1929.

B. F. Fairless, first vice president of the Republic Steel Corporation at Youngstown also believes that firmer prices as well as a recovery of operations early in 1931 are in prospect.

"The production of steel in November has dropped to an annual rate about 35 per cent under the average for the last five years," he said. "The country's use of steel has not declined so heavily."

Farmers Suffer Most From Depression

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Nov. 25—Perhaps the Pulitzer prize for understatement should go to this observation that the business depression has deferred the approach of the United States toward an economic millennium.

M. S. Rukeyser.

Hopes for greater economic equality and social justice ran high as recently as the fall of 1928, when Herbert C. Hoover, while a candidate for the presidency, announced the idea that the ultimate aim of American business was the abolition of poverty.

Apart from the obvious burdens on great multitudes of unemployed there has also been an extremely significant, though more subtle shifting of economic power from farm to city and likewise from more disturbed to less upset industries. These vastly important changes must be detected by looking beneath the statistical fictions of averages and of general statements. For example, more than 120 favored and exceptionally aggressively managed corporations in the first nine months of 1930 reported larger net profits than in the corresponding period of the prosperous year—1929—despite the fact that companies in general reported substantial decreases in profits. Six hundred and forty companies revealed decreases in earnings in this same period of 24.42 per cent.

The pressure against business prosperity has been measured in the drastic and sustained fall of commodity prices. Even though there has been no unmistakable sign that bottom has at length been reached, it is at least apparent that the rate of decline has been checked.

In spite of the temporary pains of readjustment, price declines are far from an unmixed evil. The social injustices spring from the fact that there are inequities in price readjustments—some groups being relatively harder hit than others.

How have different groups in the community fared at the hands of deflation which has, in my opinion, about run its course?

In spite of the beautiful political promises of farm relief, the distressed farmers have, among the employed classes, suffered most. The inequalities of price adjustments have resulted in a jam which is the primary condition of the existing depression. Perhaps the jam or deadlock can be relieved through a recovery in agricultural prices, or in a relative decline in the price of manufactured goods going directly to the consumer.

Frederick C. Mills, Columbia University economic statistician, in a survey for the National Bureau of Economic Research, throws new light on this subject which goes to the essence of the ingredients for recovery of prosperity. In indicating in exact terms the extent to which the depression hit country folk and city folk, Mr. Mills points out:

"The recession of 1920-21 left manufactured goods overvalued, in terms of earlier standards, and raw materials undervalued. It left producers goods undervalued and consumers' goods overvalued; it left agricultural products with low purchasing power. The present recession, like that of 1920-21, has materially cheapened agricultural products, raw materials generally (including copper) and producers' goods intended for ultimate human consumption. It has enhanced the real value per unit of non-agricultural products and of manufactured goods.

"It has certainly increased important elements of manufacturing costs per unit of product. Finally, it has increased the real value, in terms of other commodities, of processed consumers goods, a group which has been consistently high priced during recent years. At present prices goods in shape for consumption and use by individual consumers are worth 11 per cent more, in terms of commodities, than they were in 1913. Among these goods those which are products of manufacture stand 12 per cent above their 1913 purchasing power and 3.9 per cent above the level of July, 1929. Highest in price among these goods are non-foods, which have been particularly insensitive to the drop in general prices. These stood in September 23 per cent above their 1913 values, and 7.3 per cent above their July, 1929 values."

The immediate practical problem for business men is how to expand the aggregate volume of trade in spite of these relative dislocations. Recovery was effected after the depression of 1921 without equalizing the relative position of the city man and the farmer. It was then accomplished by dint of a great advance—unprecedented in its rapidity—in industrial productivity between 1921 and 1923. Statisticians expect the growth of industrial productivity to be continued, though not necessarily at so remarkably rapid a rate as in 1921 to 1923. Mr. Mills concludes:

"The shattering of established price relations is not a necessary barrier to recovery . . . The existence of altered price relations which might be adverse to prompt revival could be offset by favorable conditions elsewhere in the economic system, as was the case during the recovery of 1921-22. But unless such favorable conditions develop, price inequalities may be a factor of some importance during economic revival."

Mr. Mills sticks to the facts and leaves soothsaying to others. In this connection a theatrical press agent recently remarked that the country had been suffering from over production.

Texon Oil Pays $1 in Extra Dividend

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Texon Oil & Land directors declared an extra dividend of $1 in addition to the regular quarterly disbursement of 25 cents a share on the common, payable December 31. October 1 last an extra dividend of $1 was paid. The company is controlled by Continental Oil Company.

Curb Market Has New Profit Taking

New York, Nov. 25—Operations for the rise in curb stocks were considerably hampered by heavy profit-taking in the late trading today, and the market as a whole finished off at generally irregular levels. Selected utilities moved against the trend to substantially higher levels.

Curb Seats Advance $22,000 in Two Days' Buying

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—The price of New York Curb Exchange seats recorded a further advance today with announcement that arrangements had been made for the sale of a membership at $100,000.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES ARE MOSTLY UP

Active issues were mostly higher in today's Boston Stock Exchange trading. Gillette responded to declaration of the fourth quarter dollar dividend by moving up a point.

Point or better gains appeared for United Shoe, Nash, Edison, Bigelow-Sanford, American Telephone and Boston Elevated second preferred.

Advances of a fraction were registered for General Electric, New England Telephone and Stone & Webster.

Atchison moved up around 3. Sullivan Machinery set a new low but swiftly rallied 2 points to regain most of its day's setback.

Mayflower-Old Colony in the penny group sold off 5 cents to a new low at 20 cents.

The decision of the United States Supreme court to review the case brought by the American Glue Co. (now Eastern Equities Corp.) seeking a tax refund of $233,000 means that the matter will come up for argument early in December and a final decree should be forthcoming sometime in the spring of 1931.

In reality a sum larger than $233,000 is involved. Former subsidiary companies are seeking refunds similar to that of the old parent company. The aggregate of these sums claimed is approximately $420,000, or the equivalent of $9.60 a share on the 43,677 common shares, on which $100 a share has already been distributed in the process of liquidating the company.

With bank loans and preferred stock out of the way and provision made for redemption of all funded debt on Jan. 1 next, any recovery in the way of a tax refund will accrue solely to the common stockholders.

PROFIT TAKING APPEARS IN WALL ST. TRANSACTIONS

New York, Nov. 25—Traders decided to be thankful for small profits in advance of the Thanksgiving Day Holiday in today's market. Realizing sales late in the session more than cancelled an early rise.

The market closed with a heavy tone, numerous shares showing net losses of 1 to 4 points. The downturn did not come until prices had been pushed up into the neighborhood of the peak of the recovery, recorded last Friray. The day's transactions aggregathed 2,000,000 shares.

SHARES UNDER PRESSURE.

Motion picture, mail order and rail shares, all of which have had intervals of group strength recently, were under considerable pressure. Shares losing 2 to 4 points included Loew's, Fox, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, New York Central, American Can, American Telephone and Case.

Shares closing off around a point included U. S. Steel, du Pont, Byers, Geenral Electric, General Motors and Woolworth. Early advances of 1 to 5 points in the steels, railway equipments and specialties were almost wholly erased.

TRADING MORE LIVELY.

Trading was a little more lively than yesterday, and there were numerous early gains of 2 points, notably in U. S. Steel, Republic Steel, Byers, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Union Pacific, New York Central, Goodyear and J C. Penney.

A few shares advanced about 3 to 5, including American Locomotive, Lima Locomotive, Allied Chemical, Atchison, U. S. Industrial Alcohol, Ingersoll Rand and International Business Machines.

The mail order shares sagged, after yesterday's brisk upturn, and the motion pictures declined moderately.

The reopening of some of the recently closed banks in the South and Southwest, together with reports from banking commissioners indicating that the crisis had passed, had a salutory effect upon sentiment. While these difficulties had been isolated and due to local situations, they had been an adverse psychological influence at a time when gloom was already deep.

U. S. STEEL HELPS

The steel shares were helped by a firm stand taken on sheet prices by U. S. Steel, coming upon the heels of the recent announcement of a minimum schedule for plates, shapes and bars. Furthermore, some producers have advised their customers that current minimum prices cannot be guaranteed for the first quarter of next year.

Railway equipments were bid up in expectation of improvement in business after the first of the year, and in the case of American Locomotive, in response to news of further diversification of its activity.

In the motion picture shares, Fox Film and Loew's, in which Fox has a dominant interest, were heaviest. This may have been in part a reflection of the adverse Supreme Court decision in the distribution case, but the practices complained of are understood to have been abandoned some time ago.

It was regarded as probable that some traders were disappointed in the extra dividend of $1 by Loew's, as there had been some talk of increasing the regular annual rate of $3.

Allied Chemical declared a stock dividend 1-20th of a share, in addition to its regular cash payment, as it did a year ago, and International Business Machines ordered a 5 per cent stock distribution, presumably reflecting its increased earning this year. Humble Oil ordered an extra 50 cents, in contrast to the recent trend in oil dividends.

BRAZIL TRADE IS IMPROVED

Washington, Nov. 25 (INS)—Both favorable and unfavorable developments marked international trade during the last few weeks, according to cablegrams received by the Commerce Department today.

There was a change for the better in Brazil, where considerable optimism was expressed as to future conditions. Jamaica presented a contrast to most of the southern countries, with a continued upward trend in business during November and a favorable outlook for the future.

Some strengthening of conditions were seen in the Far East. Japanese conditions were uniformly dull, but little difficulty over year-end settlements was anticipated. Several areas in China showed moderate improvement. Rice crop prospects were favorable in both Siam and Indo-China.

Merchandise stocks were being reduced in British Malaya. The demand for and the price of leading export commodities in the Philippines was stronger and business in imported textiles improved. Agricultural conditions in Australia and New Zealand were described as excellent.

New Construction Totals Are Given

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Contracts for new construction of all types awarded in the metropolitan area of New York during the week ended Nov. 21 totaled $13,545,000, F. W. Dodge Corp. reports. This brought the November total to $45,595,400, a rate of $2,682,000 per business day, against $3,079,000 per business day in October, and $6,026,000 in November, 1929.

For the year to date contract awards amounted to $865,294,600, against $1,051,040,200 in the corresponding period last year.

BANK BEST PLACE

Ans.—No. Advice to speculators is distinctly outside our line. No one can know more about future prices than the next fellow. In view of your past experience, you ought to turn over a new leaf. Keep your money in the savings bank. Watch it grow. Any attempt to increase the amount through gambling may result in its complete disappearance.

WLEX SANTA CLAUS SWAMPED BY LETTERS

With such a horde of letters coming in, Santa Claus, who broadcasts from the Boston Evening American WLEX studio at 6:30 p. m. each Monday, Wednesday and Friday, is a little apprehensive as to how he will be able to answer all the kids' requests over the radio. Already he has half a dozen secretaries sorting his mail and they are kept busy every minute of the day. However, be patient kids, and your letters will be read over WLEX.

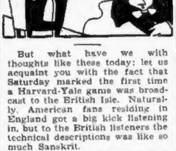
Concerning Radio

Edited by BILL WHIPPLE

According to detailed reports from observing friends last Saturday was a beautiful day; the sun shone brilliantly, the air was balmy and the little birdies twittered their roundelays in the lilac bushes—or whatever kind of bushes little birds twitter in—and all the world was gay.

Hold! We retract that last statement, for we who are stationed at the listening-post of radio affairs were enshrouded in gloom, and saw not the sun or gave ear to the merry song of feathered friends. Our heart was bowed down with grief because we were unable to be one of the mad throng in New Haven, where we had so hoped to participate with the rest on that multicolored, bottle-field where waged the scrimmage between crimson and blue.

It was a disappointment, yes; nevertheless when yesterday swung into line and we tripped blithely to the office after a week-end of quiet repose and communion with nature, and on the way to said office met three or four drooping spirits who had just returned from New Haven, and who all evidenced the happy, beaming countenance of one who is to be shot at sunrise, somewhat of the grief caused by missing the game left us. It is so hard to get over a football conflict these days.



"YALE IS KICKING OFF!"
"OH! SOMEONE IS DYING!"

But what have we with thoughts like these today; let us acquaint you with the fact that Saturday marked the first time a Harvard-Yale game was broadcast to the British Isle. Naturally, American fans residing in England got a big kick listening in, but to the British listeners the technical descriptions was like so much Sanskrit.

An AP dispatch informs us that the ether seethed and sizzled with the pace and vigor of the announcer's description. It was easy enough to keep in mind the fact that Harvard was leading. The announcer must have been a Harvard man, he repeated the score so often.

There was one moment when no announcer was needed as the tumult sounded across the Atlantic. Just how the score was made no English listener could hazard, but all the world's akin when a goal, touchdown or whatever you call it, is made.

It was an exciting moment. The rustics chiked over their Saturday night halfpints and paunchy ex-Rugby stars stirred in easy chairs at their clubs and said one to another, "I say, old chap, what is all this bally row?"

Apparently We Have Been Wrong

Seemingly in Scotland when lads and lassies are badly smitten with an active love germ they sneak out into the country and locate a field of rye; then they start at opposite sides, wander through it and meet each other somewhere in its depths. At least that is the idea we received from hearing that beautiful old Scotch song, "Coming Through the Rye."

We should have known better; no Scotchman would allow such a waste of good grain. According to the Davey Tree Hour propaganda the "rye" mentioned in the song does not refer to a field of grain, but to the river Rye in Scotland where it used to be a quaint old Scottish custom for laddies to kiss lassies encountered on the stepping stones.

Two programs of timely interest will be on the air this evening which should be worthy of your attention. One, a musical version of Thanksgiving Day, will feature the program presented by Howard Barlow and the Philco Symphony Orchestra, over WNAC at 9:30; the other will be various forms of Thanksgiving from those offered up by the Israelites on their delivery from Egypt to the modern American festival, to be described by Frank H. Vizetelly in "The Story of Thanksgiving," over the Columbia System at 5:15 this p. m.

COMING OUT OF THE ETHER . . . Miss Europe, winner of the continent's beauty prize, who is now in Boston to select Miss New England, will broadcast over WLOE tonight at 9:15 . . . Every year, two or three songs stand out from the thousands that are written, and this season "Little White Lies" seems to head the list. For a novelty on the Happy Wonder Bakers' program, heard over WEEI at 9:30 tonight, Frank Black has arranged a medley of melodies everyone was whistling several years ago. For the rest of the program the Bakers have used admirable restraint and are keeping away from Thanksgiving songs . . . On the other hand the Philco program boldly jumps into the season's spirit and offers a musical version of the events that led to the dedication of Thanksgiving Day.

RADIO Personalities

Abrogating his usual rule of shunning personal appearances PHILLIPS LORD is making a series of talks in and about New York for the benefit of the unemployed. He also is doing radio work for those in need. . . TED HUSING reads up on both football teams day and night a week in advance of each game he broadcasts and then writes from 20 to 50 pages of notes to which he refers during dull spots in the play description. . . DAVID ROSS cups his ear with the palm of his hand while reading poetry so as to hear his own voice and maintain its proper level. . . Telegrams and long distance phone calls from Detroit, Houston, Pittsburgh and Denver came to WABC five minutes after BELLE BAKER went on the air as guest artist in the Radio Follies Friday night. . . ANN LEAF, diminutive CBS organist, just bought a roadster and the controls in the car had to be adjusted to Ann's measurements. . . Even the best of us falter. We recently heard the pioneer NBC announcer, MILTON J. CROSS, winner of the first diction medal, tell the radio audience of a "sojoin," not a sojourn.

Bride's $6000 Ring, Lost 3 Years, Found Under Bottle

Paris, Nov. 25 (INS)—Three years after it had dropped off the finger of a careless bride on her honeymoon trip, an engagement ring worth $6000 was found beneath a dusty, cobweb-covered bottle in a Versailles cafe.

A newly-married couple were lunching in the restaurant in 1927, when the engagement and wedding rings fell from the bride's hand.

They instituted a search, but only the wedding ring was found. While cleaning his cellar a few days ago the proprietor lifted an old, empty bottle and found the ring beneath it.

Build Up the Navy Now

Best Way for U. S. to Reduce Unemployment

If President Hoover is ever going to carry out the Navy program pledged by his Administration, and really build the ships that the Navy urgently needs, now is the time to do it.

Building up the Navy now toward the limit fixed by the London Naval Treaty will do more to reduce unemployment in all parts of the country than can be done by expanding and expediting any other part of the Federal program of public works.

Of the total cost to be spent on the ships called for in this program, it is estimated that eighty per cent will go for American labor composed of almost every known craft.

Not only will labor along both Coasts benefit by this expenditure, but labor in every State of the Union will benefit also, because the materials for these ships will come from all parts of the country.

Building up the Navy now will be good business for the Government and wise economy for the taxpayers. Building materials are cheaper now than they have been in a long time—cheaper probably than they will be a few years hence.

There is an abundance of labor to be had now at a reasonable wage, eager for work, and badly in need of work.

Building up the Navy now to that "equality with the strongest," which is the established naval policy of the American people, is the best safeguard of peace and protection that the Government of the United States can provide.

Naval opinion is united upon a reasonable program of new construction for the next fiscal year. This program the Navy Department will urge upon Congress if only the President will carry out his promise and take the lead in its support.

Public sentiment is overwhelmingly in favor of building up the Navy now and keeping it at the highest possible standard of efficiency.

It will cost considerably less than a dollar apiece for all Americans if the President and the Congress will follow the advice of the Navy Department and carry out the program for new construction which it favors.

It will put many a dollar into the pockets of American wage-earners North, East, South and West, at a time when they and their families need the money, if the Navy Department's program is adopted at the short session.

The policy of the Administration in all necessary matters involving large construction and employment should be—

Unworthy Aliens

Arsonists Should Be Deported

Mr. John W. Reth, the State Fire Marshal, has appealed to the national government to arrange immediate deportation of five unworthy aliens convicted of arson crimes.

These men showed no disposition to assume the sacred obligations of citizenship. They manifested no desire to profess fidelity to this "land of opportunity" which gave them asylum, a charter of individual liberty and the chance to work and live peaceably with their neighbors under the finest conditions which exist anywhere in this world.

On the contrary, they violated the laws of their new country by practicing the most heinous of crimes, jeopardizing the lives and property of their law-abiding neighbors.

They outraged the courtesy which the United States had extended them.

By their wilfulness, they tended to bring into disesteem the large body of aliens who observe the law, who are industrious, who look forward to acquiring honorable citizenship and who have handicaps enough confronting them without assuming the intolerances and hostilities engendered and provoked by the indiscretions of criminal compatriots.

If America was good enough for them to come to, it was good enough for them to live in honorably and decently.

America's wealth, art and independence have received notable contributions from aliens and their descendants. And the prestige and influence they have gained should not be sapped nor diminished by the vicious minority who neither reap nor toil, but proceed to get their living from the muzzle of a gun.

It may be said that the deportation of vicious criminals will lodge a hardship upon their dependents. No doubt it will. But it is the consequence of their own acts and they should have counted the toll before embarking upon their career of criminality. They are entitled to get any tune they pay for.

Mr. Reth's commendable activity should serve to awaken the drowsy national authorities from their torpor. He shows them abundant law to get rid of those worthless aliens whose stay here is a sorry liability and a menace to domestic peace and good order. They should have been the first to see it.

Listen, World! Bad Habits

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Not Enough to WISH to Cure Them

YOU CAN cure that bad habit as soon as you wish—BUT THE WISH MUST BE MORE THAN SKIN DEEP.

It isn't enough to say—"I'll cure myself of bad temper—or lying—or flirting—or gambling—or self pity—or drinking—I'll cut out doing these things." It isn't enough to say that. You can't cure a habit that way. You must go deeper. You must find and face the thing in you THAT MAKES THE HABIT. You must stop not only doing the thing, but wanting to do it.

Elsie Robinson

Habits are not meaningless growths that fix themselves upon our characters, like warts. There is a reason for them. They are an expression of some definite need or tangle in our natures. Sometimes it is a physical tangle. In that case, take yourself and your habit to the doctor. But oftener the tangle is in your spirit—

Take drinking, for example. There is Bill Smith. A great fellow, but a souse. He actually cut it all out for months. But no use. He always goes back to it. Why? Because, while Bill has tried to stop drinking, HE HAS NEVER TRIED TO STOP THE THING THAT MAKES HIM WANT TO DRINK.

What makes people drink? According to the old-fashioned temperance ballyhoo, people drank because of the insidious effect of Liquor Fumes. If you really wanted to play safe you had to hold your nose every time you passed a saloon. Or maybe Grandpa hung it on you by his indulgence. In which case, you never could tell, from one minute to the next, when the Awful Appetite would grip you.

This theory was thrilling and made gorgeous sermons, but it was quite untrue. It isn't a Mysterious Something in alcohol that makes a man drink. IT'S A TRAGIC SOMETHING IN HIMSELF. Bill Smith drinks, not to get something but to GET AWAY FROM SOMETHING. Perhaps it's weariness or worry, boredom or grief, or some secret sense of shame or inferiority. Whatever it is, Bill wants to shake it for a while—wants to ESCAPE. And drink is Bill's ESCAPE from the thing that's nagging in him.

All our bad habits are escapes from something that's nagging us. It's no use to try and cure the bad habit, itself. We must cure the thing that lies behind that habit—the fear or pain or weakness that is making us seek that habit as an escape.

Don't say—"I'll cure myself of being a grouch by being a Pollyanna—by smiling instead of frowning." That will get you nowhere. You must cure the loneliness or conceit or hate or discouragement that makes you WANT to frown and snarl.

And how can these things be cured? First, by WANTING to cure them . . . by getting ourselves so fed up on them and their consequences that we're ready for something better. And, secondly—BY TRYING SOMETHING BETTER — SUBSTITUTING SOME NEW, HEALTHY INTEREST FOR THE OLD, UNHEALTHY URGE.

Is your life being warped because you hate someone. Are you becoming a gambler because you're restless? Then pick some new adventure for yourself that will use that recklessness constructively, instead of destructively. Are you drinking because you are ashamed and discouraged and sick of life? Then tackle some new job that will build up your respect and enthusiasm.

That's the way to cure a bad habit, and the only way. You can cure ANY bad habit as soon as you wish—but the wish must be more than skin deep. It must go down into the secret places of your heart—into the roots of your nature.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

Gil Patten, Two-Fisted Writer

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—Those thatching gray about the temples and collecting crow's feet around the orbs are tickled over the sudden return to the typewriter of that strapping, white-haired author of their youth—Burt L. Standish. Under this pseudonym he turned out the five cent Frank Merriwells.

In real life he is Gil Patten, from up Bangor way, a two-fisted writing man whose total output exceeds that of any living writer. He is a typical drawling-voiced down-easterner who inspired thousands of boys to become collectors of his Tip Top Library at the cross roads.

Years after Frank Merriwell was only a memory I used to play pool with a crowd which included the late Clare Briggs, the late William Johnston, Ewing Galloway, H. T. Webster, Ray Rohn and Herb Roth. We gathered at an uptown hotel.

Into the game one Saturday afternoon came a fellow called "Gil." We were casually introduced and as he was about to make a shot someone nudged and whispered:

I don't recall receiving a bigger thrill.

I cornered him and told him of my youthful admiration and he seemed actually surprised anyone had remembered him. Frank Merriwell was dropped because Arthur Patten had carried him all through Yale and to a happy marriage. Too, the movie pictures came along with a new sort of wallop.

But the pendulum swings back. Patten believed there was a place for a dime weekly fitting into the pocket. The Swift Story Magazine Co. was incorporated as a result. The newer hero, modernized, is known as "Bob Hunter, or The Boss of the Rum Runners."

Patten at the peak of the Merriwell craze never made more than $100 a week, although that was big reward in Gay Ninety days. It is estimated during his productive years he turned out 40,000,000 words with a lead pencil.

* * *

The 5 and 10's now sponsor a group of dime monthly magazines sold only on their newsstands. Two already near the million circulation mark. A chain of cigar stores features a full length 50 cent novel and two five-cent weeklies for sophisticates are on the grill.

* * *

Hack writers, turning out pot boilers, used to live precariously in cobwebby Village attics, working when the rent was overdue and idling rest of the time in the candle-lit coffee parlors and waffle shops. With the movies, the hack writer became almost extinct, but due to economic conditions he faces a roseate future.

* * *

On a stretch of Riverside Drive elderly twin brothers come to a certain bench daily at sundown, light pipes and sit in studied contemplation, never exchanging a word. At the precise minute nightly they walk away together. "Odd duffers," commented a corner cop. Odd doubtless in this neck of the woods because they mind their own business.

To warm up my workshop I closed doors leading into it. For an hour the two dogs have had their noses glued to the sill crack, thinking they are missing something beyond. That's how nosey they are.

And to kill off time waiting for a little heat, I picked up one of those futuristic books with angular drawings which began:

"If you can think of space when it was apparently empty, you were there."

No wonder people ache for Frank Merriwell literature again. At least it didn't give you the ipsillipilus.

In the dining room of a Cincinnati boarding house years ago a fellow diner was a self-effacing and singularly courteous gentleman—the last person one would imagine interested in boxing, horse racing and other sports. Yet it was Frank J. Bruen, who became for a time manager of Madison Square Garden and is the man many believe will succeed to the place held by Tex Rickard in promoting big sporting events.

The painted cheeks and mascara dripping eyelashes of a 34th st. department store floorwalker at 11:45 a. m. were too much. At 1:30 a. m. I still cannot remember what I wanted to ask him.

Rubber and Labor

This Picture Interests Mr. Edison, and 25,000,000 Automobile Owners

WORKING FOR $20 A YEAR AND BOARD

Fortune, which costs a dollar a copy and seems to be worth ten, publishes this picture, among others, in a study of rubber—its past and its future. It is interesting to know that originally rubber growing belonged to Brazil, and coffee growing belonged to Ceylon, Java and other Eastern countries. Pests killed the coffee trees in the East, and Brazil got the coffee business. Then an intelligent Englishman, Sir Joseph Hooker, decided that if Brazil could take the British coffee business, the British Eastern countries could take Brazil's rubber business, and they did.

The rubber tree that supplied the rubber that went on Henry Ford's first automobile, making it possible, as Fortune says, for that machine to go twenty miles an hour without breaking to pieces, was grown in Brazil. That tree still is standing, probably. Rubber trees live to be old. But little rubber now comes from Brazil.

Patriotic Americans (Thomas A. Edison among them) are trying to grow and produce rubber in the United States. This picture will make them pensive. It ought to warn anybody who thinks of investing too hastily in any American rubber growing company, which has nothing to do with rubber manufacturing companies.

The rubber worker in the picture, who may come from any one of half a dozen Eastern countries (China, Ceylon, Sumatra, Java) works three years and gets sixty dollar for the three years, with board and lodging. The earth supplies his lodging; he never saw a mattress. A few cents' worth of rice supplies the food for a week. You couldn't compete with that in the United States, even in these days of unemployment.

SCIENCE could and eventually will compete with the rubber that cheap labor now produces for an actual cost of thirteen cents a pound. It will be done synthetically by using some by-product, perhaps of petroleum, perhaps something else, and will replace rubber, as dyes made from coal tar now replace the bright scarlet that once was made from an insect, hiding under a leaf, or the brilliant purple, made from the inhabitant of a sea shell, two thousand years ago.

It is interesting to know that the British at one time managed to force the price of rubber above a dollar a pound. President Hoover called attention to that, and the price came down. Now it is TOO low. Rubber that costs thirteen cents a pound, without charging the cost of $500 per acre for clearing land and planting trees, is sold for less than ten cents a pound. That won't last. Rubber will be stabilized eventually.

And you may feel grateful to the rubber-tire makers when you read that, in ten years, they have produced 500,000,000 tires for the American people, and have produced these tires at a loss. We need not grudge the British the little money they made by their rubber corner for a while. It was by them that the rubber trees were transplanted to the East, in spite of Brazil's law, that forbade the export of rubber seed. Sir Joseph Hooker got around that neatly by exporting seedlings, and exporting them secretly.

If the British hadn't transplanted the rubber tree business to their Eastern territories, there wouldn't be enough rubber now to take care of our automobiles at any price, and rubber might be three dollars a pound.
